Ristuccia Family Offers Recreation Center To Town

By Susan J. Rand

The Ristuccia family has offered to build the town a recreational center costing at least $3 million which will house an ice rink — if the town can find a piece of land to accommodate the structure.

The building, to be called the Elinor M. Ristuccia Memorial Arena, will be a memorial to the late Mrs. Ristuccia, a 27 year resident of Andover, who died this past June 19, at age 63.

Joel M. Ristuccia, one of six sons of Elinor and Bernard Ristuccia, who lives on Holt Road, first outlined plans for the project in a letter to Town Manager Kenneth Mahoney dated Nov. 27. The younger Ristuccia told THE TOWNSMAN it was hard to pinpoint when the idea for the recreation center was first discussed, saying the family had been thinking about it for a year or so.

Plans for the project were mentioned at the Board of Selectmen's meeting on Monday night and again at the School Committee meeting this past Tuesday when Selectman Chairman Donn Byrne told the School Committee the only town-owned land large enough to accommodate such a structure was 113 acres off Cross Street, now under the direction of the School Committee. The land was acquired as a site for a school, Byrne said on Tuesday.

The Ristuccias are proposing to seat between 3,500 and 7,000 in the recreation building. And Byrne said a 40 acre parcel would be needed if the structure is built to seat 7,000. Twenty acres, he said, would do for a 3,500 seat arena. The Cross Street land is 113 acres, 16 of which are unuseable wetlands, leaving 97 for development.

The School Committee must transfer the Cross Street land to the town, something which Town Meeting voters will have to approve, if the Ristuccia arena is to be located there. School Committee members did not vote to release the Cross Street land on Tuesday, saying they first wanted to look at all other school-controlled parcels that could accommodate an arena. But the committee did vote, unanimously, with member Susan T. Poore absent, to approve "in principle" the transfer of an appropriate parcel of school land to the town for the project.

Superintendent of Schools Kenneth R. Seifert told the committee a maximum of 25 acres would be needed for a school, leaving enough land at the Cross Street site for an arena. The committee also discussed marking out where a school could go on Cross Street for future development before releasing land there for the arena.

Committee member Richard E. Neal volunteered to work as a liaison with Seifert, the selectmen and the Ristuccia family on the project.

Tentative site plans Byrne showed the school board on Tuesday show a 190 foot by 339 foot building, which Joel Ristuccia told THE TOWNSMAN yesterday will not be a "big concrete box."

The Ristuccia family has retained the Melrose firm of Daniel F. Tuiley Associates Inc., to design and construct the arena, to which the School Committee and Byrne talk of adding a town swimming pool.

Tully has built athletic buildings at Georgetown University, in Washington, and Connecticut College, said Ristuccia. The Andover plan includes a wood design with a roof that has three peaks, instead of a flat design, said Ristuccia.

He said the cost of the project was hard to determine, adding it would be a minimum of $3 million. Construction, Ristuccia said, will depend on the town's work to find a location for the project. In his November letter to Mahoney, Ristuccia said he expected construction on the

No Extensions To Be Allowed New Year's Eve

The Board of Selectmen this year have declined to allow local restaurants a customary extension of the hours that alcoholic beverages may be served on New Year's Eve.

Town Manager Kenneth Mahony Monday night told the board that in past years the selectmen have allowed restaurants to serve liquor until 3 a.m. on Jan. 1 — two hours later than the usual 1 a.m. cut-off hour — upon written request from each establishment.

Water Quality Seems To Be Improving

How does your Andover water taste these days? Members of the Board of Selectmen Monday night indicated that theirs isn't as bad as it was a few weeks ago, but the town manager said his is still rather odorous — and not pleasantly so.

Manager Kenneth Mahony noted that state inspectors recently finished testing the town water supply in Haggetts Pond, and found that "there isn't any better water in the Commonwealth — except that it stinks."

As long as algae continue to bloom in the pond, the water will have an unpleasant (though harmless) taste and odor, the manager said. He noted that the Quabbin Reservoir, which supplies water for communities in the Metropolitan District Commission, is struggling with the same algae problem this year.

Some townspeople have noticed an improvement in water quality recently, including the selectmen, most of whom said their water is "getting better." DPW officials had hoped to see a substantial drop in algae production — enough for the unappealing-water problem to take care of itself — several weeks ago.

Child Care Committee Reconvenes

The Department of Community Services will reconvene its Child Care Committee on Monday, Jan. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the senior center. A sub-committee of this group was instrumental in the development and implementation of the Shawsheen Extended Day (SHED) program this fall.

The committee's main goal this year will be the implementation of an elementary-school-age, extended-day program next fall. A second goal will be a renewed effort in the development of a preschool child care program at the high school.

Those interested in helping to implement these goals, but were not involved last year or were unable to attend later meetings, are particularly encouraged to come to this re-organizational meeting.

Employment Opportunities For Students

The Department of Community Services offers college-age individuals employment opportunities during the summer months. These opportunities include such positions as Drop-In, Pre-School, All-Day and Special Needs playground leaders, life-guard, swimming instructor, tennis instructor and tennis monitor. College students interested in part-time or full-time summer employment can fill out an application at the DCS office during Christmas vacation. The Department of Community Services is located in the Town Office Building on Bartlet Street. Office hours are Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

31 Species Counted In Bird Census

The Merrimack Valley Bird Club took part in the nationwide Christmas bird census sponsored by the Audubon Society.

Under the direction of group leaders Albert Retelle, A.M. Wilson and Eugene Ballard, the club surveyed the bird population on Haggett's Pond, Shawsheen River, Stearns Pond and Lake Cochichewick as well as backyard feeding stations. Thirty-one species and over 700 individual birds were counted with a pied-billed grebe and two flickers being the rarest winter birds. Flocks of Goldeneye and American Merganser ducks were found in good numbers on the rivers. Cardinals, titmice, juncos, goldfinches and various sparrows were numerous on home feeders. One red-tailed hawk was discovered along Route 495.

Club members who joined in the survey were Jack and Peggy Mahoney, North Andover; Harriet and Bill Headley, Salem; Bea Pfister, Evelyn and Terry Retelle, Edith Wilson, Joseph and Jean Dane and Arthur and Joyce Johnson of Andover.

Special Hours At Blood Donor Center

The American Red Cross Blood Services-Northeast Region announced special holiday hours will be scheduled for the Red Cross Blood Donor Center at Bon Secours Hospital, Methuen. Donor center hours on Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve will be from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

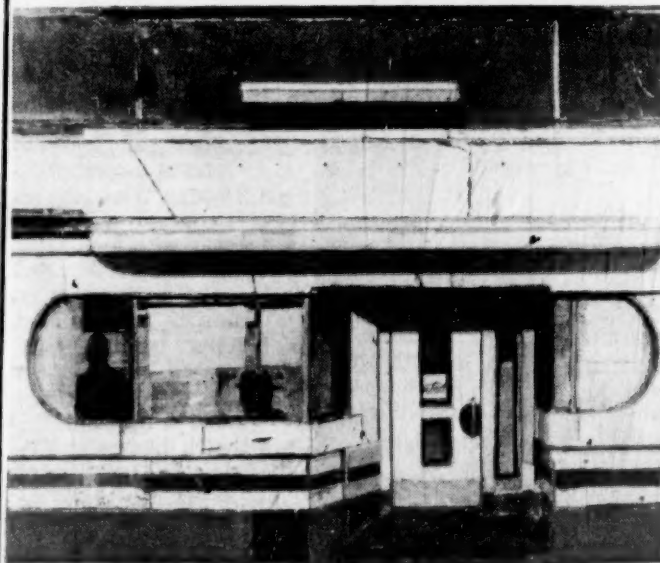

"The holidays are always a difficult time for blood collection, because people are busy planning celebrations," said Jamie Haines, spokesperson for the Northeast Region Blood Services. "We are changing our operating hours on these holidays to make it more convenient for donors to give blood."

"We generally notice a decline in blood donations during major holiday periods, because donors become involved in festive activities. The week between Christmas Eve and New Year's Day is a time of particular stress on the blood supply because these holidays fall so closely together," said Haines.

"Throughout this summer and fall, blood collections have been lower than usual, resulting in a shortage of Group O blood in October. While this shortage has been somewhat alleviated, thanks to tremendous public response to an appeal for this blood group, there is always the possibility that a decline in donations during the holidays could cause serious shortages again," according to Haines.

Generally, anyone in good health, 18 years old (17 years with parental consent) or older, who weighs at least 110 pounds and has never had hepatitis may be able to donate blood. For more information on special holiday donor center hours as well as regular hours and scheduled blood mobiles, call the Red Cross during business hours.

Wilderness Fair At Academy

A free public fair for those interested in the great outdoors will take place at Phillips Academy in Andover on Sunday, Jan. 6, from 12 noon to 5 p.m. Organizations to be represented all stress different aspects of an extended wilderness experience. Some, such as Outward Bound, focus on stress and teamwork, others emphasize skills in survival. Hiking, climbing, biking, sailing, camping, white water boating, instruction in the natural sciences (such as marine biology, geology, ecology) and cultural exchange are among the options offered. As the first opportunity to review many different education programs under one roof, the fair will include continuous slide shows by organizations based locally, nationally and abroad. Outward Bound, NOLS (The National Outdoor Leadership School), Audubon, Interlocken, The Quebec-Labrador Foundation, The School for Field Studies, American Youth Hostel, Oceans, Earthwatch Expeditions, Wilderness Bound and The Keystone Center will be represented. The fair will take place in the Underwood Room at Phillips Academy, across from the Andover Inn on Chapel Avenue, off Route 28 in Andover.

Al Coons, a faculty member at Phillips Academy who is coordinating the program, reports that this fair represents a unique opportunity to compare many of the options available for wilderness experience training. As one of the instructors in the Search and Rescue Program, Coons helps implement a sports option at Phillips Academy for students interested in wilderness education. The Search and Rescue Program has existed at Andover since the mid-1960s and is modeled after the Outward Bound School, which was founded in the United States in part through the efforts of Joshua L. Miner, Andover's dean of admissions. Coons is a past instructor of the Outward Bound school, has helped to develop such programs for juvenile delinquents and has been an instructor at Phillips Academy in math, computer science and search and rescue since 1979. For further information on the fair, call him at Phillips Academy.

The original name for the ice cream sandwich was a "slider."

Wishing you "gladness and mirth."

It was on this day, the 25th of Kislew in the year 3595, over 2,000 years ago, that the Temple in Jerusalem was rededicated to God by Judah the Maccabee ("the hammerer"). His forces had just driven out an enemy which had defiled the same Temple three years before.

Amid the ruins, a cruse holy oil was found, and used to relight the Temple light. Then, tradition states, came a miracle: the oil, enough for one day, continued to burn brightly for eight.

In remembrance, today millions around the world will observe Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights, in the spirit of Judah the Maccabee, who said, "Let these events be celebrated with mirth and gladness for all time to come."

From the Officers and Staff of Andover Bank, wishes to you and yours for a very happy Hanukkah.

A Computer Will Provide The Full Orchestral Effect For Amahl

By Sue Aucella Deacon

The last time Anita McDuffie directed Amahl and the Night Visitors in Andover, eight years ago, she recruited musicians from all over the Merrimack Valley to form the orchestra for her production. Finding the musicians and bringing them together for rehearsals was "such a project," she recalls. "It was really a massive effort."

She will direct the Christmas opera again next month at St. Augustine Church. But this time she recruited just one Andover musician, Scott Nason — and challenged him to simulate the sound of a full orchestra using his home computer and three synthesizers.

There will be no oboes playing during this Amahl, nor flutes, nor violins, nor clarinets. There will be instead "our four hands," the director says, with Scott at the computer and Anita at the synthesizers, making the sounds of all those instruments and more.

There will also be four acoustic instruments (piano, bass violin, trumpet and percussion) to accompany the 50 or so singers in the opera — for after all, Scott points out, the singers "are at the center of everything. This is just accompaniment."

"Purists will object violently," the director predicts. "But it's exciting. It's like having an orchestra right here," she explains, glancing down at the synthesizer keyboards.

"Some people will say that synthesizers don't sound like 'real' instruments," Scott adds. "It's certainly different. It's difficult to duplicate an orchestra exactly, and that's not what I was ever trying to do. But to be able to expand what a few (musicians) could do makes a lot of sense."

The music produced by Scott Nason's Alpha Syntauri computer does not, in fact, sound precisely like the music that flows from acoustic instruments. But it is definitely melodic and pleasing: light and pretty, or stately and elegant by turns.

Scott has programmed his Syntauri (which consists of two synthesizers inside of and controlled by a standard Apple computer) to simulate ten instruments, including cello, two oboes, flute, bass clarinet, harp, brass and strings; it can also emit an eerie "spiritual" sound effect to accompany a miracle that takes place during the opera.

The three synthesizers simulate the sound of string instruments, as well as harp, harpsichord, oboe, piano, bassoon and bells.

St. Augustine's adult choir of about 25 members, along with a children's choir of 25 students from St. Augustine's School, will perform Amahl and the Night Visitors at 7:45 p.m. Friday, Jan. 4, and Saturday, Jan. 5, in the upper church. (Tickets are available at the rectory, from cast members, or at the door.)

These People Are Making The Most Of Life With CLASS

By Susan J. Rand

Her parents were sure their new daughter she was going to be bright. Jennifer was their first child. Before she was a year old Jenna and her parents played games that proved her intelligence.

"Find the queen," her father would say.

The baby, eager to please, would make her way across the living room to her stack of children's books, find the correct book and open to the page with the picture of the queen.

But Jenna's development seemed to slow down after she celebrated her first birthday. Her parents brought Jenna to Children's Hospital, in Boston, where, at two and a half years old, she was diagnosed as having temporal lobe epilepsy.

At five years of age Jenna could recognize 200 words. Reflecting back on her early years, Jenna's father said that at age five Jenna was at her brightest. Her development was equal to that of most four year olds, 80% of "normal," he said.

Now 22 years old, Jenna's father puts her development at that of a 2½ year old child.

Leander Pease and his daughter Jennifer, of Stoneham, are the focus of the annual Christmas fund raising campaign at C.L.A.S.S., the Citizens League for Adult Special Services, Inc., a non-profit organization that teaches personal and vocational skills to mentally retarded adults, all of whom are at different development levels.

C.L.A.S.S. is headquartered at 16 Haverhill St. The organization uses 30% of the Village Commerce Center building to work with the adults that spend their weekdays at C.L.A.S.S. There are 22 Andover residents in the program and some 54% come from Greater Lawrence, said C.L.A.S.S. director Robert McCaffrey.

C.L.A.S.S. moved to town a year ago from Essex Street, in Lawrence. The move gave the organization more space and saw the number of trainees more than double. Last year 46 adults, aged 22 or older, were spending their weekdays at C.L.A.S.S.. This year there are 102 adults enrolled at C.L.A.S.S.

It is Friday and Jenna Pease is excited. She knows her father will be arriving shortly to pick her up and take her to their Stoneham home for the weekend.

Jenna is in the basic skills program at C.L.A.S.S. She is sitting with basic skills coordinator Cheryl Morrison while Morrison finishes some paperwork. Every few minutes Jenna giggles.

"Say hello, Jennifer," says Morrison.

"Hello," says Jenna, laughing.

The basic skills room is the most individualized program at C.L.A.S.S. The retarded adults there have severe handicaps. The ratio of C.L.A.S.S. staff to trainees in basic skills is two to one. It costs between $11,000 and $11,500 annually to educate each of the six adults in the basic skills program. Morrison and the other instructors teach what they call "ADL's," or activities of daily living such as eating, toileting, hands washing and correct social behavior.

C.L.A.S.S. Director Robert McCaffrey

A radio is on in the basic skills room. A man, with his head on his table, yells out. Morrison tells him to use his buzzer if he wants her. He puts his head back down on the table.

The man is blind, Morrison explains, and is learning how to communicate by hitting a buzzer on his table.

The buzzer and many of the other articles in the basic skills room are specially made for those who will use them. Each person has different needs, Morrison explains, so much of what is in the room is tailor made for the six basic skills trainees. It may take a month to teach someone how to pick up their special spoon, the first step in learning how to eat. Or it may take a year, says Morrison.

Again, the man at the desk raises his head and yells out.

"If you want me, ring the buzzer," he is told. Nothing. He puts his head back down on the table.

In 1976 a group of parents from the Greater Lawrence area decided they wanted something more than a babysitting service for their retarded sons and daughters and they founded C.L.A.S.S.

When a mentally retarded person reaches age 22 they become adults, according to state law, and do not have to be educated under the state's Chapter 766 law mandating education for everyone regardless of their disability.

There were two persons in the first year of the C.L.A.S.S. program back in 1976, said McCaffrey. He said much of the credit for the development of C.L.A.S.S. goes to Andover residents Alex Athanas, Claire Morin, Al and Connie Gaudet, Betty Kidwell and Rosalie Ruggiero who runs the Shop With C.L.A.S.S. store at 447 Essex St., in Lawrence. Local clothing stores and manufacturers donate new clothes for sale at the C.L.A.S.S. shop, explained McCaffrey.

Many of the adults in the C.L.A.S.S. programs live at home with their families. Others live in group homes and some live in institutions. Every morning, Monday through Friday they are picked up by a bus and transported to Andover.

The day habilitation room is the next step up from Jenna Peases's basic skills program. Here the staff to trainee ratio is three to one. On Tuesday the room smells of popcorn, the morning snack.

There are two groups each with three students working with a staff member. At one table the adults are learning sign language.

"Open book," says the teacher; a student slowly repeats the command in her silent language.

At the other table Sharon Lenhard is working with three men, two of whom are rocking back and forth in their chairs.

"We went to the store and we bought some apples," she says to her three students. "What else did we buy?" In turn each man adds something to Lenhard's list. Popcorn, says one, Coke and meat,

Firefighters Christmas Party

The Andover Firefighters held their annual Christmas party for their children last Sunday and invited 15 children from the St. Ann's home in Methuen to join them in greeting Santa Claus. A total of 90 people attended the party held at the Phillips Academy Log Cabin and enjoyed some cakes that were donated by the Greater Lawrence Vocational School and ice cream. Santa Claus took time out from his busy schedule and dropped in to hand out gifts and talk to the youngsters. Photos clockwise from upper left: Chief William T. Downs hangs onto his grandchildren, Christian Wisecarver, seven, Meagan Wisecarver, three, and Duston Hewet, two, as they pose for a picture being taken by his daughter; Four-year-old Bobby Piskadlo enjoys his ice cream; Jennifer Valentine, three, gets a greeting and gift from Santa Claus; Jayne Gorrie plays with her 16-month-old daughter, Amy; Firefighter Armand Guilmette helps his one-year-old daughter, Katelyn, with her gift; Children from the St. Ann's Home gather around Santa; Three-year-old Dawn Aiello opens her gift from Santa.

Doherty Junior High Happenings

Holiday projects are underway at Doherty Junior High School. As part of their service to the community the Student Council participated in a Christmas party for the children in the Professional Nursery for the Handicapped on Tuesday. Participants were Kelly Darwin, Lisa Fosella, Kevin Gangi, Beth Howe, Laura Johnston, Jennifer Kasper, Ricky Lafond, Steve Mencis, Amy Moody, Aleke Msumba, Erin O'Boyle, Chris Patten, Sharon Petzold, Christine Recesso and Josh Yezerksi. Decorations, gifts and food were all contributed by the ninth grade.

Today, Thursday, a group of students spent their afternoon carolling and decorating the inside of the Academy Manor Nursing Home. Organizing the event were Laura Johnston, Beth Mollineaux, Beth Vince and Kelly Darwin.

A group of seventh graders will hold a gift-giving party for the students in Mrs. Pat Corcoran's special needs class tomorrow. The presents were purchased with money collected from each of the seven seventh-grade homerooms.

Aleke Msumba and Sharon Petzold head another special holiday project, the purchase of special gifts for families in need in the Merrimack Valley. The funds to purchase these gifts were donated by members of the ninth grade.

The ninth grade went on a class trip to Bruin Hill Farm last Friday night and enjoyed an hour and a half hay ride. All students had a great time and more trips like this are planned for 1985.

Students Tour New York

Thirty-five West Junior High School students toured New York City on Dec. 6 through 8, with school drama and English teacher Doris Bernardin and her husband Richard Bernardin.

Their four day weekend stay included what Bernardin said was the most popular stop, a trip to NBC studios where the late-night comedy show "Saturday Night Live" was being rehearsed. Star Jim Belushi and guest host and former Beatle Ringo Starr, waved to the Andover group watching in the studio.

They also saw the Broadway hit "Cats," the United Nations, Statue of Liberty, Empire State Building, Wall Street, American Museum of Natural History and St. Patrick's Cathedral. Some students ice skated at the famous Lincoln Center rink while others shopped along Fifth Avenue and others rode in a horse drawn buggy through Central Park.

Making the trip to New York were Leah Abrahamson, Stephanie Aznoian, Karen Annaian, Paul Anderson, Sean Bergen, Monical Barkowitz, Bill Barkowitz, Steven Bromberg, Ann Marie Charland, Amy Cogger, Amy Cooper, Patricia Dziadosz, Kathy Dziadosz, Jennifer Doherty, Maria Dukas, Elise Bernier and Robin Crooks.

Also Pamela Egan, Debbie Freeman, Susan Hartigan, Marie Jurek, Sandra Kannan, Hallie Keene, James Kim, Chris Lawson, Kellyann MacLean, David Namkung, Bartley Parker, Amy Piazza, Barbara Sheenan, Thomas Sheehan, Eric Tatro, Kerry Walsh, Kim Wilkins and Kathy Ziegenbein.

Carisbrooke Street Decorates Homes

The annual Carisbrooke Street Holiday Home Decorating Contest has produced an enthusiastic response from neighbors wishing to partake in this festive event.

Committee members have been busy visiting homes in an attempt to view the Christmas decorations adorning both inside and out. The task of judging was a difficult one, for competition was keen as was evidenced by the numerous decorative themes, each of which deserved awards of merit. The judging categories included best tree, best fireplace mantle and best outside decor.

The competition is over and results are being tabulated. This year's committee chairman, Robert Mirisola, will announce the Coveted Noel Awards at a champagne and buffet dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowman on Christmas Eve.

Andover Woman Winner

Mary Todd Glaser of Andover and her partner won the Flight B Pairs competition in the Eastern Mass. Sectional Bridge Tournament held recently at Dawson's Bridge Studio in Reading. The tourney attracted top duplicate bridge players from all over eastern Massachusetts.

Glaser, who has been playing serious bridge for only about a year, termed her achievement with partner, James Poulin of Woburn, a "total surprise," and said that she considers herself still very much a rookie at this highly competitive form of bridge.

Glaser is senior conservator at the Northeast Document Conservation Center and was in the news recently as one of the persons vitally involved with the documents found in the safe raised from the sunken liner "Andrea Doria." Like most of the regular players at the Dawson Bridge Studio, she finds, in duplicate bridge, a game of fascination and intellectual stimulation. The game played competitively is called duplicate bridge because each table plays the same hands, thus high scores come solely from the skill of the players and not from any "lucky deal."

Kevin M. Carroll, son of Commander and Mrs. John Carroll of Andover, won the New England School of Law Honors Moot Court Competition held last month. The annual advocacy competition recreates an appeals court proceeding and helps competitors develop their oral argument skills.

The team will go on to represent the law school in next spring's National Appellate Advocacy Competition and in next fall's National Moot Court Competition.

Landmark Removed

Lately known as the The Haven Building, the Essex Street building, which housed varied activities over the years, was torn down last Wednesday to make way for new library construction and parking. In years past it was the site of the Andover railroad station, later becoming the Andover Playhouse movie theater, then private offices, finally municipal offices housing the development and planning department before the decision to use the property for the new library addition and renovation project.

Class Of '80 Planning Reunion

The reunion committee for the Andover High School Class of 1980 has started plans for a summer class reunion.

The plans entail a cocktail hour, dinner and dancing as well as surprises. There are approximately 100 graduates from the class whose addresses are not known. Letters were sent out to those whose address the committee could find. Rush Tickets Going Fast

Tom Rush, the popular folksinger, will return to Andover, by popular demand, Saturday, Jan. 19, at the J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts, off Route 133, Shawsheen Road, on the campus of Andover High School.

Appearing with his "friends," the term he uses for his band, Rush is in the middle of a comeback from his popularity in the early '60s, when he started singing in Harvard Square.

In the course of a 20-year professional career that began in the coffee houses around Harvard University where the folk music revival was born, Rush has made ten record albums and entertained innumerable concert audiences. Rush has never been a pop music singing star, but he has had a significant influence on the course of today's music. Tom Rush's music has always been personal, bridging the gap between the joyful shout of rock and roll and the muted plainsong of traditional folk ballads.

For the last three years he has played to sold-out audiences at Symphony Hall, Boston. The ratings were phenomenal as nearly 10 million viewers tuned in to watch when he arranged for his concert to be broadcast nationwide over PBS television.

In addition to planning a TV series for public television on the roots of American music, Rush has also cut a new album, "New Year," gleaned from his first Symphony Hall concert.

Tickets are on sale at Andover Bank, Main Street, Andover; Just For You, 36 Main St., Andover; the Andover Bank, Main St., North Andover, and the Collins Center Box Office, open daily from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Coupon Bonds

Secretary of State Michael J. Connolly announced that he will not permit the offering of "zero coupon bonds" as an added inducement to a major purchase unless the offeror is registered with his securities division.

"Zero coupon bonds have been common in many states," Connolly explained, "as they are used as marketing tools for major purchases such as houses, condominiums and furniture. For example, to boost sales a furniture dealer may offer a $1,000 zero coupon bond with the purchase of $1,000 worth of furniture."

"The attraction of zero coupon bonds to the consumer," Connolly continued, "is the low initial cost and the opportunity to gain the total face value of the bond. For example, an investor can pay approximately $5,000 for a bond that will be worth $100,000 in 25 years."

The major problems faced by purchasers of these bonds involves taxes, he added. Zero coupon bonds grow at a compounded rate of interest and are taxable annually by the Internal Revenue Service. So, the bonds can actually have negative tax consequences to the purchaser. If the dealer doesn't inform the consumer of this possibility, it is a deceptive practice to advertise these bonds as "free" giveaways.

Raised

Sumner M. Redstone, president of National Amusements, Inc., announced that the New England premiere benefit performances of the motion picture "The Cotton Club" raised more than $35,000 for the American Cancer Society.

Redstone, state cancer crusade chairman for 1985, hosted the three benefit performances; one at the Showcase Cinemas 1-4 in Lawrence.

The American Cancer Society is a national voluntary health organization of 2.5 million Americans united to conquer cancer through programs of research, education, patient services and rehabilitation. Of every dollar raised by the American Cancer Society, 83 cents directly supports their cancer control programs. The 1985 crusade goal for the Massachusetts Division is 4.9 million dollars.

Board OKs Education Grants

More than a half million dollars in federal vocational education funds will be shared by 18 Bay State school districts because of action taken by the Massachusetts Board of Education.

The money, to be used to fund a variety of vocational education programs, was approved at the November meeting of the board. The board annually approves about $12 million in federal funds to prepare Massachusetts' youngsters for the world of work.

The board places special emphasis on funding programs that teach computer skills and serve students who have traditionally been underserved in the past, according to Massachusetts Commissioner of Education John H. Lawson. "We want to make sure that before a student leaves the public schools, he or she has mastered certain skills, the skills necessary to compete successfully for jobs in our own high technology industry here in Massachusetts," he said.

"The board and I also share a strong commitment to insuring that disadvantaged, minority, bilingual, handicapped and female students receive the same level of services as any other student," Lawson said.

Academy Manor Roommates Reminisce About Andover

By Susan J. Rand

They hadn't seen each other for 48 years but George Knipe and Michael Lynch made up for a lot of lost time when they found themselves roommates at the Academy Manor Nursing Home, on Morton Street.

The two men reminisced about their years together as Andover youngsters with three West Junior High School students and THE TOWNSMAN this week, explaining how they played together on the Andover Guild basketball team back in 1912. They weren't even teenagers when they met at the Guild, located on Brook Street, where they went to play ball, bowl and learn gymnastic exercises, explained Mike.

Around the holidays both George and Mike have special memories about the Christmases gone by.

For George, the holidays mean music. A performer since he burst into song, at age nine, one Easter Sunday in the Christ Church aisle, George counts among his accomplishments the creation of a number of singing groups in the area. This Christmas he will stay at his Morton Street home where the residents will be entertained by a number of local groups presenting holiday musical programs.

And Mike will travel to his son Dick's home in Methuen where his six children, 18 grandchildren and one great-grandchild will celebrate Christmas. A family man, for Mike, Christmas is the time to gather with the rest of the Lynch clan.

Mike's son Dick is the focus of one of Mike's favorite Christmas stories. A Christmas day, some 46 years ago, said Mike, he was helping with Christmas services while working as the sexton at St. Augustine's Church when word came that Dick was born, a Christmas baby. The proud father didn't rush off to see his wife and son, though, because he had to help with the mass in progress, he said.

West School sixth graders Dan Elliot, Ben Howard and Dan Ely listened as the elders recounted the times they shared together, when they were about the same ages as their young visitors. The youngsters and their classmates visit the nursing home once every three weeks, they explained. They help with chores such as mail delivery and distribution of juice in the mornings.

The room Mike and George share at Academy Manor showcases George's musical awards. This Christmas is the first time in 55 years he hasn't sung "The Messiah" with the Andover Male Choir. It is too difficult to get out to the rehearsals, George explained. A plaque on the wall notes his 50 years in the choir, from 1928 to 1978. Another, dated 1939, was the first prize in a New England Federation of Men's Glee Clubs contest.

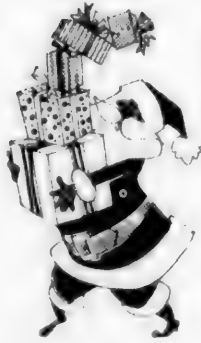

"I remember singing with J. Everett Collins in the Christ Church choir," said George, recounting times 70 years ago.

George often plays straight man to Mike's witticisms. Around Academy Manor George is known as "the voice of Academy manor," the elementary school boys were told. Each morning and afternoon George reads the day's menu, weather and activities over the public address system. At the mention of his inherited job George explains how he came to be "the voice."

Academy Manor administrator David Solomont asked George to broadcast the daily announcements on the weekends, as a substitute for the woman reading the Monday through Friday news.

"It turned into one long weekend."

Tips On Testing Tree

Everyone wants a tree that looks like it was taken right out of the "Nutmacker Suite." Is there any way to be sure you're not buying a lemon this year.

Absolutely, says Andover resident Arthur McCue of the Faneuil Hall Flower Market at the West End of Faneuil Hall Marketplace. And Arthur should know. He's been selling trees with his mother, Thelma, and brother, Harry, for 30 years, 365 days a year from 7 a.m. to midnight. That includes Christmas Day, when McCue says, "You get the real hard core last-minute shoppers."

According to McCue, it's important to make sure the tree isn't dry. A good test is to bend a needle. If it springs back, it's fresh, if it snaps, it isn't. You can also test for dryness by lifting the tree a few inches and then dropping it to the ground. It's normal for some of the inner needles to fall, but if many of them fall, the tree isn't fresh.

A common misconception is that trees are sold by size, says McCue. "That isn't so. Trees are sold by beauty—so you should look for uniform density, a straight trunk and an even grade to the sides. Making sure the tree comes from a reputable tree distributor is also important. A distributor's name on the tree and where the tree is from helps to ensure good quality."

There are also guidelines to follow in caring for your tree once it's at home. The best (and most practical) base to use for the tree is a pail filled with rocks covered with decorative paper. The bigger the tree, the larger the pail. Christmas trees, like all living plants, should be watered. Pour approximately a quart of water into the pail daily. If possible, keep the tree outdoors away from strong wind and sun until you are ready to use it, then before decorating bring the tree into a partially heated area like a basement or porch, so it can adjust gradually to indoor temperatures. Once inside, keep the tree away from radiators and baseboard heaters. McCue maintains that if shoppers pay heed to these guidelines, their trees should last a good five weeks.

A great majority of the trees McCue carries are from Nova Scotia where he maintains the best Christmas trees are grown. "The year-round colder weather in Canada makes for a fuller, fresher tree which lasts longer. They're pruned since they're babies so the shapes are usually very good." The most popular tree at the Flower Market is the Balsam which has fluffy fir. Also carried are Scotch Pine, with its long, thin needles, Spruce, which shed more quickly and should be bought later, and Blue Balsam which has bluish fir and is scarce. The Blue Balsam is popular, but more expensive. Also sold are live trees which can be planted after Christmas as a beautiful memory of the holiday past.

Girl Scouts Add New Age Level

For the first time since 1926, the Girl Scouts have added a new age level to their program. Daisy Girl Scouts, the newest members of the national Girl Scout family, are girls who are five years old or in kindergarten. Troops of Daisy Girl Scouts are now forming in all 54 towns and Fort Devens of Spar and Spindle Girl Scout Council.

Girl scouting was extended to include five year olds in response to changing family lifestyles in which children are more likely to be out of the home and become ready for an informal educational program like girl scouting at an earlier age. The program has been popular in Spar and Spindle since its inception. There are 134 girls registered in 23 troops in the council.

Daisy Girl Scouts are named after Juliette Gordon Low, the founder of girl scouting, whose nickname was Daisy. They wear a bright blue smock over their street clothes as a uniform.

Daisy Girl Scouts will not sell cookies or earn badges like other Girl Scouts. They will keep a scrapbook of their year in scouting, do service projects in their community, attend day camp and have their own Daisy Girl Scout ceremonies and troop government.

Parents are an integral part of Daisy girl scouting and are asked to fund the troop and accompany the troop if they are go troop camping.

Girl scouting in northeastern Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire is administered by Spar and Spindle Girl Scout Council and is supported in part by seven United Funds and United Ways.

Legend had it that Pythagoras could fly through the air.

Children's Pageant At Church

The church school children of the Unitarian Universalist Church of Andover will present a special Christmas Pageant on Sunday, Dec. 23. Their pageant, "Three Great Birthdays," was written by Sheila M. Duram, directed by Liz Roman, assisted by Cynthia Genier, coordinator of religious education.

The presentation focuses on the birth of three famous infants. Jesus, Buddha and Confucius were born, lived to adult life and died hundreds of years ago, yet millions of people around the world honor these great teachers and the wisdom and idealism they spread through Christianity, Buddhism and Confucianism. Candlelight Service At Church

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Andover will hold their traditional Christmas Eve candlelight service at 7 p.m. in the November Club, 6 Locke St., Andover.

The adult and children's choir will present traditional Christmas music and the congregation will join in the singing of several selections.

Because of the unbearable crises in Africa, the directors of the church and the minister, Rev. Rosemarie Smurzynski, suggest that the usual Christmas offering be channeled for African Relief. Funds collected will be directed to the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee in Boston which will direct them to "long range efforts and emergency needs for direct relief in sub-Africa."

The Christmas Eve service is open to anyone who wishes to be part of a religious experience on Christmas Eve. The church, a liberal presence in Andover, welcomes visitors and guests.

Pageant At Church Sunday

The Ballard Vale United Church (United Methodist Church and United Church of Christ) will mark the fourth Sunday of Advent with a Service in Anticipation of Christmas. The children of the church school will present their annual pageant telling the story of the birth of the Christ Child according to the Gospel of Luke. Jennifer Price will be Mary with David Froburg as Joseph. Lisa Campbell and Steven White will be the narrators. Leigh Ann Catanzaro and Amanda McKew will offer a flute duet, "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

The choir, under the direction of James Sayees, will sing two anthems, "Come to the Manger" and "A Norwegian Christmas Carol." The Rev. Gary S. Cornell, pastor, will have "Here-re-re's Jesus" as his message.

This family service will be at 10:30 a.m. with nursery care for infants and toddlers.

Lexington

Visit the Museum of Our National Heritage with Sarah F. Robbins of the Peabody Museum of Salem, on Thursday, Jan. 17.

There will be a conducted tour of the special exhibit of 17th and 18th century New England maps, lunch in a French restaurant and a look at the Gallery on the Green's collection of 19th century American painting.

The bus leaves Peabody Museum of Salem at 9:30 a.m. and returns at 3:30 p.m. Prior registration is required.

In 1965 Kenneth Palmer of England wrote the Lord's Prayer 25 times on a piece of paper the size of a small stamp. It consisted of nearly 7,000 letters.

Condo Proposal Before Board

The Zoning Board of Appeals will get another look at an 80 unit condominium project they approved two years ago when Andover developer Anastasios Kalogianis asks for a variance to build his five-story project on 12 Railroad Street, at their next meeting.

Kalogianis had board approval for a variance to build the townhouse development in November of 1982 but let the variance lapse before starting the project. The variance to build condos in an Industrial G District was good for one year from from its issuance.

The board will hear Kalogianis's plans as well as four other requests at their meeting on Thursday, Jan. 3, at 7:30 p.m., in the School Committee conference room, in the school administration building, Whittier Street.

His plans for the condominium development is the same, said Kalogianis's attorney Reginald Marden, of Andover, except for the site's sewer connection. Originally Kalogianis wanted to tie into a sewer that he could reach by crossing an easement on property owned by the MBTA. The sewer layout has changed, Marden said in a telephone interview with THE TOWNSMAN this week, and Kalogianis will instead run a sewer line down Baker Lane in exchange for upgrading the private way, he said.

Kalogianis wants to begin construction as soon as his variance is renewed, said his attorney. The 46 foot brick building will contain 80 one and two bedroom condos that Marden said the town needs.

"The Board of Appeals was quite enthusiastic about the (first) plan and the way it met the housing needs in town," he said. "That need has increased in the two years that the variance has been pending."

The project will be built by Kalogianis's Olympic Construction Company, Marden said, adding he wasn't sure of the price range of the homes. A swimming pool and other common areas as well as more than the 105 parking spaces mandated in the 1982 ZBA decision will be part of the project, according to Marden.

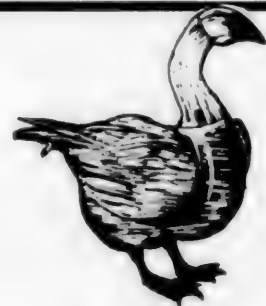

Town planners will review the Kalogianis project and will make recommendations on the variance request to the Zoning Board, said Andover's Principal Planner Nancy Jeton. Jeton, who said she hadn't yet studied the site plans, reserved comment on the project.

The ZBA will also consider a request from Cormier-Andover Inc., 59 Chandler Circle, for a special permit for work at 60 Canterbury St. The request is for an extension of a board special permit that was granted in March of 1982 which has since lapsed.

Gerard and Julian Levesque will ask the board for a variance to divide a lot of vacant land with frontage on Tewksbury Street into two parcels, each of which will be smaller than town zoning laws mandate. The land is in a Single Residence A District.

And variances will be requested from Dean and Katherine Romig, 78 River St., who want to add a second floor to their home but need a variance because their home is too close to the front lot line. Seymour and Mildred Vogel, 15 Birch Road, hope to construct a screened in porch which will be too close to the lot line.

Town Meeting May Examine Business District Expansion

By Sue Aucella Deacon

Town meeting may be asked to expand the Central Business District (CBD) in two directions this year, but the Planning Board remains unconvinced that Andover truly needs a larger business district at this time.

The planners would be particularly reluctant to enlarge the downtown business zone if it meant decreasing the town's stock of apartments and moderate-income housing near the center of town, they indicated Tuesday night.

During a discussion of possible expansion of the central business district, Nancy Jeton, principal planner for the Community Development and Planning department, told the board that two CBD rezoning articles may come before annual town meeting in April.

Daniel Morin of Andover will ask voters to rezone his 72 Park St. property from residential to business zoning, Jeton said; that property borders the existing business district.

And, North Andover funeral director John Caron may return to town meeting with a request to rezone an apartment house at 42-44 Elm St. from residential to general business; he hopes to open a new funeral home at that address.

Town meeting defeated that proposal last year, after the planners called it spot zoning. This time, however, Caron may try to avoid the spot-zoning label by asking voters to rezone not just 42-44 Elm St., but the three residential properties that fall between that address and the end of the existing CBD (the Gurry Agency at 28 Elm St.) as well.

Caron could not be reached for comment yesterday. However, Jeton told the board it appeared "ninety-eight percent sure" that the funeral director would present the rezoning article to spring town meeting.

(Last year, town officials suggested that Caron include the three neighboring parcels in his rezoning article, the planner said.

(She also noted that in light of a "town-wide feeling that we should have a funeral home downtown," it would seem that Morin's Park Street property also "has that potential" to be converted into a funeral home, if it is rezoned for business use.)

Planning board member Russ Moran said that if Andover is to expand the CBD next year, he would not like to see just "a little finger" of expansion up Elm Street, or expansion tailored to allow one specific use (such as funeral homes).

Instead, Moran said, the town should plan a "more thoughtful" expansion that would take into account the need to maintain housing downtown, and the additional parking problems that business expansion could entail.

Chairman Margaret Bradshaw said her board needed more information on occupancy, vacancy and turnover rates in the existing business district, as well as more data on the demand for new office space downtown. Jeton said she could not promise that such information could be compiled before town meeting, which convenes April 1.

"We need to get some consensus on what the problem is," Moran said. Bradshaw agreed, asking, "What is it we're trying to create? Is it just offices? Why do we want or need that?"

The chairman said that businessmen like Morin and Caron would have to "convince" her that their properties should be rezoned for business, rather than be put to some other use. Board members emphasized that they do not want to sacrifice downtown housing for the sake of creating new offices.

Planner Paul Curley said the board has in recent years placed a high priority

Arrested For Bomb Threat

Andover Police arrested an Andover man early Sunday morning after he called the police and fire stations twice telling switchboard operators a bomb would go off in the town's public safety building.

There was no bomb in the building but Stephen P. Buck, 8 Summer St., was arrested and has been charged with making the calls, a felony, which carries a 20 year prison sentence, said Andover Police Sgt. Hector Pattullo.

Buck, who is 25, first called the station at 3:39 a.m., on Sunday, Dec. 16, from the Andover Savings Bank, on Main Street, where he works as a janitor, said Pattullo. He said a bomb would go off in the building in 30 minutes. He called back ten minutes later to say the bomb would go off in 20 minutes and, according to Pattullo, the call was traced with help from the telephone company.

Andover Sgt. George Miller arrested Buck on Chestnut Street, running from the bank shortly after the second call. Assisting were officers Richard Aumais, John Bernhardt, Frank Froburg and David St. Jean.

Pattullo said the fire and police stations were not evacuated after either of the calls. Both were searched by on-duty officers, he added.

Buck was held by Andover Police until 12 noon, Sunday, when he was released on $2000 bail. He appeared in Lawrence District Court on Monday, Dec. 17, and his case was continued to Feb. 20, said Pattullo.

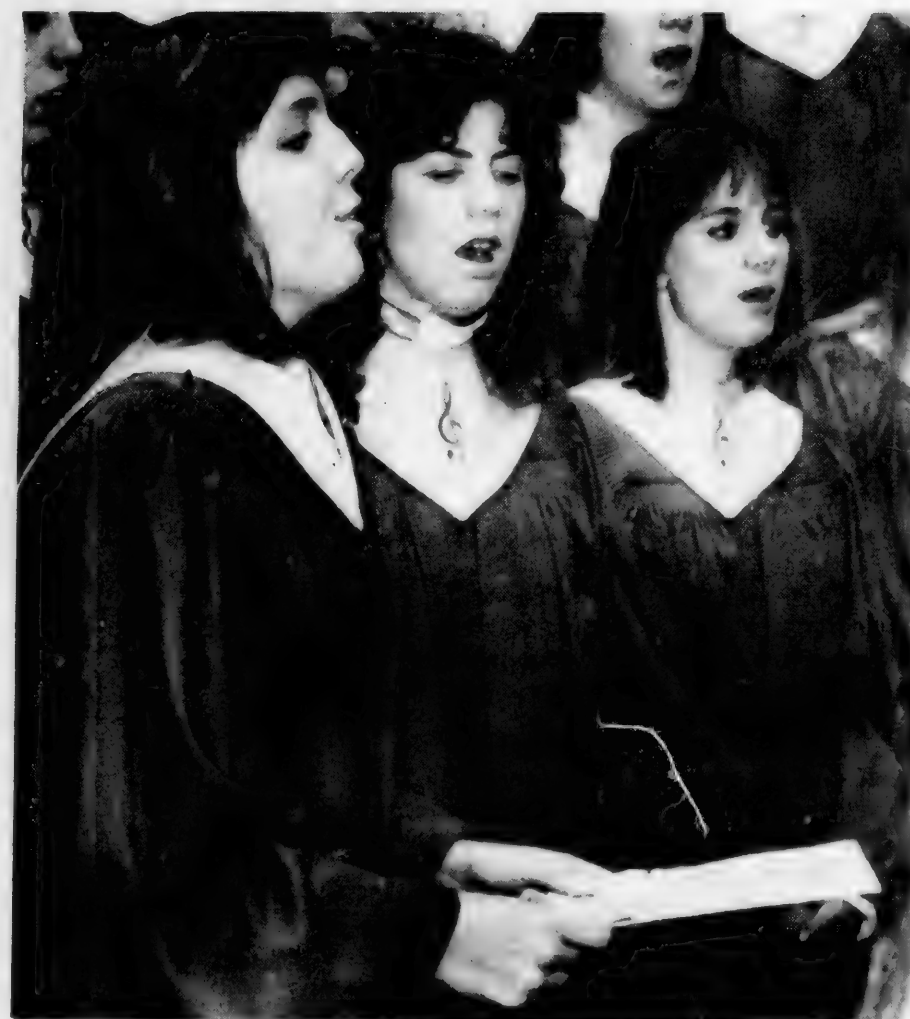

This is the second bomb threat in Andover in as many weeks. On Monday, Dec. 3, Andover High School officials received word that there was a bomb in the Shawsheen Road school. No bomb was found and no one has been charged with making that call.

From One Andover To Another

The Rev. James Diamond of Christ Church (left) Monday night presented Selectmen Chairman Donn Byrne with a gift from Andover, Hampshire, England: a framed black-and-white drawing of Guild Hall (equivalent to Town Hall) in the English town. The Rev. Diamond passed along the gift, left with him by the vicar of Christ Church in Hampshire county, England, who recently visited here. The drawing of Guild Hall, built in 1825, is a gift to the people of this town from their English counterparts, who will soon celebrate their Andover's 150th anniversary, the reverend said.

Choirs In Christmas Concert

A section of the Andover Bank on Main Street was converted into a small concert hall Saturday as the Andover High A Cappella Choir and Madrigal Singers performed their annual Christmas concert. Under the direction of J. Everett Collins and Keith H. Gould, the Andover High School Choirs have been performing the Christmas Concert for over a decade at the bank. A large gathering listened and sang with the performers as they provided an hour's worth of Christmas carols. Employees and banking customers also enjoyed the concert as they went about their business. Photos clockwise from upper left: The A Cappella Choir and Madrigal Singers perform with J. Everett Collins conducting and Keith H. Gould accompanying; Kristen James sings with Beth Deacon and Fran Baglio; Mr. Collins, the conductor; The audience gives a listen; Two-year-old Stephanie Varley listens up front; The Handbell Choir, Nancy Wolk, Karin Mesler, Julie Barbagallo and Ben Choi, perform "O Come All Ye Faithful"; Buffy Varley of Crestwood Drive sings along as she holds her eight-month-old son, Andrew.

CHRISTMAS

The Christmas season, building as it has been for these past few weeks, reaches its crescendo in these final days as the most joyous time of the year is celebrated.

Soon the tuneful carols will be amplifying, the scurrying for gifts concluding and the settling back to truthfully observe the holiday through reflection on the Holy Birth will culminate the joys and thankfulness of another Christmas.

Christmas is truly the time of year when the message of peace is presented through the Nativity Scene.

It provides the inspiration for us to become more charitable, to be thoughtful of the needs of others.

Love and brotherhood are exemplified through the exchange of gifts among family and friends.

Families take the time to gather together in churches and in homes, some travelling miles to enjoy the season in renewal of the family unit.

The music of the holiday, some religious in nature, portrays the joyous spirit of the season.

It is, after all, an opportunity to pause for a few moments to forget the ills of the world and reflect a bit on the peacefulness of that Holy Scene in Bethlehem and what the Holy Birth was meant to accomplish -- peace on earth to men of good will.

Our problems will not diminish or vanish.

But, taking the opportunity to observe this holiday by improving our lives in the rededication to the principles exemplified in the manger scene, provides the hope for an improved world.

In the celebration of Christmas, we convey the prayerful wish that the significance of the birth of the Prince of Peace will provide the inspiration for a dedication toward a peaceful world filled with the brotherhood displayed by the Holy Family.

A Merry Christmas to all?!

Down The Years With The Townsman

75 Years Ago — December 1909

The Metropolitan will be open Saturday, Christmas morning, until eleven o'clock for the benefit of those who may have forgotten to make necessary purchases.

The engagement of Arthur G. Clark and Miss Louise G. Goldsmith, who have been so closely identified with Andover through the Gift Shop, has been announced.

On Friday several members of General William F. Bartlet W.R.C. went to the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea where they refurnished the Andover room in that institution.

Professor William H. Pickering, professor of astronomy at Harvard, Mrs. Pickering and Miss Pickering, and Mrs. Munro of Lexington spent the week-end at the house party given by Mr. and Mrs. William Wood at Arden.

Frank P. Higgins, the well known local baker, has installed a lunch counter in his shop which will be a great convenience to all, especially those who are in the habit of waiting for the trolleys.

Dandelion blossoms, three of them, full blown and healthy, were given to a representative of the Townsman Tuesday, Dec. 21. They had been picked from a lawn in front of a family home on Chestnut Street the same morning.

50 Years Ago — December 1934

There are all sorts of ways of saying it. A whole column could be written about it. Even a full size book might be used to convey the message. But were we to write 10 or 15 volumes on it, still we could not wish it any more sincerely than we do when we say these words: "Merry Christmas to All."

Miss Agnes Carter and John E. Haggerty won the Goldsmith speaking prizes in the fortieth annual contest held Friday afternoon in the town hall. The prizes were five dollars each. Miss Carter, a sophomore, recited "The Legend Beautiful" by Longfellow, while Mr. Haggerty recited Washington Irving's "Adventure of the Black Fisherman." He is a junior.

For the first time in about a decade there will be one complete delivery of parcel post on Christmas morning. There will be no mail delivery. Christmas mail business here so far this year has been about twenty percent higher than for the same period last year. The carriers for the next few days will make several extra deliveries.

Many of our merchants in Andover have requested that we extend their thanks through these columns to the many local residents who this year have followed the policy of "Trying Andover First." The response of the townspeople to the service club's request has been a truly encouraging one, and it is hoped that this loyalty to local merchants will continue.

The 1960 tax rate may increase by as little as 25 cents if tentative budget estimates prepared by Town Manager Thomas E. Duff are approved. The 1959 rate is 26 per thousand. In his first formal budget presentation under the town manager charter, Duff has estimated the general government budget at $1,670,959.48 — an increase of $51,546.33 over 1959 appropriations. The school department budget, estimated for the town manager by the superintendent of schools, is $1,300,000.

An extremely heavy load of Christmas mail is passing through the Post Office this week, as residents began to mail their Christmas cards and parcels. Postmaster Stephen Boland said 55,000 pieces of mail went through the cancelling machine Monday — a heavier load than usual compared to other years. The local office also handled 1,207 packages that day. Boland said there will probably be a mail delivery Sunday. The stamp window of the office will also be open Sunday, from noon to four o'clock.

The Recreation Committee of the League of Women Voters has reported to its directors that the Andover recreational program is inadequate, compared to the needs of the town. Mrs. R. Milton Cole, issuing the report for the Recreation Committee, listed a seven-point program which the committee feels will help establish what it believes to be an adequate program here.

There will be 56 members of the Andover High Super Bowl Champion football team receiving special jackets for their accomplishments according to a vote of the School Committee Tuesday night. The board heard a request that all members of the team be honored with jackets, which would have resulted in the purchases of some 90 or more jackets at a cost of $1,800. Committeeman William L. Lane was opposed to the jacket presentation on principle and opposed the final compromise to 56. Chairman Francis Griggs abstained from the voting, feeling strongly that all members of the team should get jackets.

Selectman Alan F. French will not seek re-election to that post at the end of his term in March. Selectman French, completing his first three-year term, announced his intentions not to seek re-election this week, in the hope of providing sufficient time for those who may wish to serve, to consider running in March and to organize a campaign.

The Carr Co., a Cambridge manufacturer of fasteners, will probably not attach itself to industrial acreage in Lowell Junction after the Selectmen Monday night informed officials of the firm that they were not in favor of an industry of this type for the community. The company had appeared before the board earlier this month asking how the board and the town would feel about them developing a new plant in Lowell Junction which would require in the vicinity of a million gallons of water a day for their plating process operation.

Lights, Benches, Crosswalks In Downtown Improvements

By Sue Aucella Deacon

With the addition of pedestrian crossing lights, crosswalks and benches, downtown Andover — especially Elm Square — may become a bit safer and a bit more comfortable for pedestrians next spring.

State Representative Sue Tucker met with the Board of Selectmen Monday night to discuss adding pedestrian lights downtown.

Townspeople complain to her most frequently about the intersection of Main and Chestnut streets, she said, and the state Department of Public Works has agreed to allow a pedestrian light at that crossing.

The town manager and selectmen, however, said that Elm Square is much more dangerous for pedestrians than Chestnut Street. Chairman Donn Byrne said that while he would like to see pedestrian-controlled lights added at Chestnut, making Elm Square safer was the town's "first priority."

Starting next spring, Manager Kenneth Mahony said, the town will add crosswalks at Elm Square, along with signs instructing drivers to stop for pedestrians. (This will supplant previous efforts to discourage jaywalking, he noted.)

Mahony said that with the state DPW's permission, new control panels would be added to the existing lights in the square; the new controls would let pedestrians stop traffic coming from all four directions, he explained.

The town will request pedestrian lights for both Elm Square and Chestnut Street, the manager said, and Tucker promised to support those requests.

Safety is also a problem on North Main Street in the Shawsheen Square area, the manager said. He'd like to see new crosswalks, center lines in the street and signs added there, Mahony told the board, including stop signs at every side street that enters onto North Main.

The manager said he would discuss those ideas in greater detail during a future meeting.

Selectman William Dalton said that cars parked along North Main Street from Shawsheen Square to Route 495 create a "bottleneck" and should not be allowed to park there at any time; Tucker agreed.

But Selectman Charles Wesson said that would leave North Main Street businesses with no parking, and in any case would not eliminate traffic problems in the "totally congested" area. (Dalton said those businesses have parking lots in the rear of their North Main Street building.)

State officials are now planning to study the possibility of prohibiting parking on North Main Street, Mahony said.

Shawsheen Square parking problems could be eased with the addition of a new 100-space lot off Balmoral Street, the manager indicated; those plans are under discussion at the moment. He added that eliminating commuter parking at the bus stop in the square would also help.

The selectmen said they will continue discussing North Main Street parking during their next meeting, scheduled for Jan. 7.

Finally, Rep. Tucker told the board that many senior citizens have asked her about installing benches downtown, at various places along Main Street (in front of Barcelo's market and the Musgrove building, for instance).

The selectmen indicated that they could probably include funds for several benches in next year's Municipal Maintenance budget.

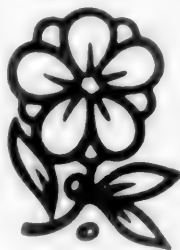

"I think we can pay something for the comfort of our senior citizens," Selectman Dalton commented.

Gives Roof

AT&T Bell Laboratories is giving the roof over its head to repair the Statue of Liberty.

Some 1,000 sq.ft. of copper that has roofed the company's auditorium since 1940 will be donated to patch badly deteriorated sections of the statue's copper skin in time for the centennial in 1986.

When John Franey, one of a group of Bell Labs experts who study metallic corrosion in order to prevent deterioration of communications equipment, heard that the 44-year-old auditorium roof at Bell Labs was scheduled to be replaced, he compared its thickness and patina with that of the statue and found he had an almost perfect match.

The Christmas Rose

There were shepherds watching over their flocks that night, who heard the glad tidings from angels. They set out, legend adds to the Gospel story, bearing gifts to the Christ child in the manger at Bethlehem.

A young shepherd girl among them followed hesitantly, because she had no gift to lay before the infant. Suddenly, the legend continues, an angel appeared scattering beautiful roses in her path. The shepherdess gathered them in her arms and ran with this gift to the child.

The flowers, never before seen, have bloomed ever since at this season. They are now called the Christmas Rose.

From the Officers and Staff of Andover Bank, wishes to you and yours for a joyful Christmas.

St. Augustine's Remains Undefeated

By Rick Harrison

St. Augustine remained the only undefeated team after just two weeks of action in the highly-competitive Andover Church Basketball League Senior Division.

The first place squad improved to 2-0 with its 45-26 conquest of Temple Emanuel at the Doherty Junior High gym, while other games saw St. Robert's A nudge Ballardvale United, 31-30, and St. Robert's B trim South Church, 45-11.

Ballardvale, Temple Emanuel and the two St. Robert's teams are all 1-1, locked in a four-way tie for second place.

The third round of Senior games, scheduled for this past Tuesday, was postponed and will be made up at the end of the season.

St. Augustine

The winners were clinging to a slim one point (14-13) lead at halftime, but then blew the contest wide open with an 18-4 third quarter run.

Temple never recovered from St. Augustine's second-half onslaught, as the victors also went on to outpoint TE by a 13-9 margin in the fourth period.

St. Augustine controlled both boards in the final half, Phil Kendall and Paul Davies dominating the rebounding action as Temple played without center Geoff Bolan (picked for Andover High JV team) and top rebounder Dave Jaye (fouled out early in the second quarter).

Jack Dalton, Drew Dunn and Davies led the pivotal third period explosion with four points apiece, while Kendall and Davies finished in double figures for the game with 14 and 10 points respectively.

Dunn contributed 7 points, Dalton 6, Kyle Murphy 4, Don Cook 2 and John Pike 2.

Kendall notched nine of his points in the first half, leading St. Augustine to its one-point advantage, and then the winners produced a more

Warrior Runners Win

The Andover Warriors Boys' and Girls' Track team edged Lawrence 48-38 for the boys and 48-36 for the girls at the Methuen Field House Monday. This was the boys' first meet of the season as the Merrimack Valley Conference officially got underway. The boys managed to take six out of ten events with some fine performances from Ron Salisbury in the 600, John Yeserski in the mile and Keith Driscoll in the 50 yard hurdles. For the girls, this was their second win of the season and won with the help of Karen Hodgkinson, Andover's outstanding shotputter, who picked up first place with a toss of 35-2½. Also winning for Andover was Kerrin Hoffman in the 1000 and Hughes in the high jump. Both teams will see action on Saturday, 10 a.m., at the Methuen Field House. Photos clockwise from upper left: Under the watchful eyes of Gerry Grasso, the distance running coach, Kate Pierson, sophomore, heads towards the finish line to win the two mile with a time of 13:04.1; with his arm in a cast, Senior Richard Burke still ran the two mile race. Richard broke his arm the first day of practice; Scott Gibson, senior lets the shot put fly. He won this event with a distance of 42-7; John Lecomte, sophomore, picks up speed and manages to pass Lawrence runner, giving himself a second place finish in the 300 yard dash with a time of 37.2; Senior Devra Weisman sprints the final stretch to take first place in the 300 with a time of 42.8; Peter Barry, sophomore, also took first in the 300, time-36.9; Junior Kelly Abercrombie rounds the corner to the finish line in the 600. She placed first with a time of 1:43.9.

balanced attack after intermission.

Dan Schaeffer and Mike McHale also played well for St. Augustine.

Erik Frank was immense for Temple, which trimmed the deficit to 32-22 with a 5-0 run at the start of the fourth quarter.

Frank finished with a game-high 20 points, Brad Croft added 4, and single free throws were swished by Mark Leinson and Dave Jaye.

Jeremy Marmer, Scott Goddess and Jason Weiner were other standouts for Temple.

St. Robert's A, 31-30

Scott Friesse converted the front end of a 1-and-1 free throw situation with eight seconds to play, giving St. Robert's A a 31-28 lead and making a buzzer-beating bucket by Brett Yannalfo of Ballardvale academic.

It marked the second one-point game for BU, which nipped St. Robert's B 33-32 in the opener for both teams two weeks ago.

Dave Orrick's fine shooting, and Jim Davis' strong all-around play, were the keys for SRA in this mini-upset.

Orrick finished as game-high marksman with 14 points, 10 of them in the first half when St. Robert's forged a 17-12 lead.

Davis came through with 7 points, including five in the final period when SRA battled back from a 22-19 deficit.

Friesse chipped in 4 points overall while Mike French, Ed Sheehan and Matt Moynihan delivered single baskets.

Andy Cornell and Sean Sullivan paced Ballardvale, whose 10-2 third period run gave them a brief lead, as they netted 9 and 8 points respectively.

Yannalfo added 6 second-half points, Brian Worcester 3, Dave Rehe 2 and Dave Gardner 2.

Scarpa Earns Letter

Chris Scarpa, a freshman defensive back from Andover, has earned a varsity letter with the football team at Tufts University, Coach Vic Gatto announced.

Tufts compiled an 0-7-1 record in 1984, its first winless season since 1951. After two one-point losses and a two-point setback, the Jumbos finished their season with a 14-14 tie with Bates.

With 45 lettermen returning, including 17 starters, the Jumbos are looking forward to a winning season in 1985.

A late season starter at cornerback, Scarpa was involved in 35 tackles and broke up five passes.

Scarpa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Scarpa, 79 Harold Parker Road, was an All-Conference football player at Andover High School.

Both teams finished with 13 fieldgoals, but SRA hit 5-of-15 foul shots to BU's 4-of-10.

St. Robert's B, 45-11

St. Robert's B fell behind 7-6 after one period, as South played extremely well, but the victors then rallied to dominate the middle two quarters enroute to the triumph.

Relentless defensive pressure and overall team speed were the keys to the SRB victory, with James Spinelli's 16 points (four each period) leading the assault.

Paul DeMarco chipped in 9 points, Mike Smith 6, Brad Reghito 5, Todd Musteraid 4, John Matola 3 and Patrick Kelley 2.

A.J. Boucher paced South with 5 points, Dave Milne added 4 and Dana Orlando 2.

Brad Wright, Jim Hendry, Steve Poor, Bill Koromhas and Mark Rao also played well for South.

Andover Hockey Association

Hockey fans know that the final score doesn't always tell the complete story of how a game was played and that certainly was the case for the PeeWees this past weekend. The Andover skaters lost to a tough South Boston Club 8-1.

Goalies Brian Novelline and Mike Nurnane faced a barrage of 39 shots, 20 of those coming in the third period. Both goalies made some outstanding saves in an effort to keep the game within reach.

Andover put out a fine effort and managed to stay with the strong South Boston team for two periods. Consistent backchecking by Colin Nix, Gary Belszinski and Keith Cutler helped keep the score to 2-0 after the first period and 3-0 after two.

Ed Chaisson finally put Andover on the board with a power play goal 42 seconds after South Boston scored its fourth goal early in the third period. Assists went to John Melillo and Scott Halecki. Joe Iarrobino and Peter Arthur had several scoring chances broken up by a blanket South Boston defense.

Much credit has to be given to harried Andover defensemen Jim Morris, Todd Allard, Sean Darwin and Chris Pothier as they withstood many blistering slapshots. The final score stood at 8-1.

Squirt A

Andover 2 - Marblehead 3

The Squirt A team handed a game to a lucky Marblehead squad that they should have won going away.

Defenseman Justin Hesenius hit Ryan Moynihan at center ice on the opening faceoff and it was 1-0 Andover after 20 seconds. Despite many golden opportunities, the score remained the same until Brendan Finneran passed to a breaking Todd Norton at the end of the middle period for a 2-0 lead. Andover got careless in the final period and Marblehead tied the score and then won on a shot through a screen with only 23 seconds to play.

Andover 12 - Triton 5

Andover jumped all over Triton as they scored five times in the first eight minutes and then coasted to an easy victory. Leading the goal-scoring parade was Danny Trede with his first hat trick of the season. Notching two goals each were Justin Hesenius, Ryan Moynihan, Andy Novelline and Bobby Daley, with Todd Noton adding one of his own. Center Steve Neal tied a team record by notching five assists in the game.

The PeeWee B's played two very tough games this week and came up with a split. They were defeated by Swampscott 3-0. It was a hard-fought contest all the way until the end. The score was 0-0 through the third period and three quick goals decided the outcome. Andover came back with flying colors, soundly defeating the number one team, Methuen, 3-0. Goalscorers were Billy Owens, Don Fraser and Dan Felley. Mike Daley was splendid in goal.

Junior Hoop League Begins

By Jim Arnold

Game action in the Andover Church Basketball League Junior Division (ages 8-9) has begun.

Twelve rosters, comprised of 125 youngsters embarked upon a ten-game slate last Wednesday evening. The schedule calls for games each Wednesday at West elementary and Sanborn schools.

St. Augustine's is represented by six teams, St. Robert's will field three units and South Church, Ballardvale United and Temple Emanuel will deploy one quintet apiece.

Big winners in the opening games were St. Augustine's B, St. Robert's B and St. Augustine's C. Three hairsplitting decisions were claimed by South, St. Augustine's A and St. Robert's A.

South, 14-12

South Church didn't waste any time in giving coach Neil Fisher the campaign's first stroke. The South five captured an overtime 14-12 win over gutsy St. Augustine's F.

South took an early lead, but six third-quarter points put St. A's back into things.

With four seconds left in regulation, St. A's Greg Lebreck chose an opportune time for his lone fieldgoal. He launched an 18-foot prayer that went all net to knot the score 12-12.

Neither team could manage a bucket in the first overtime period. Then, in sudden death, South's Doug Batchelder rebounded a missed foul shot and deposited the money hoop.

Rob Wyatt was high man for South with 8 points, while Batchelder had 4 and Tim Caverly 2. Kyle Kiberd and Samuel McLellan contributed fine floor play.

Mike Morrow chalked up six points for St. A's while Cara Morrison, Matthew Ragonese and Lebreck each tallied a bucket. Ed Fortuna and Jere Carroll also played with poise.

St. Robert's B, 20-14

Maroon-clad St. Robert's B rode 10 second-half points by Mike Famiglietti to overcome a game St. Robert's C crew.

Neither club generated much offense in the first half, which ended in a 4-4 deadlock.

But Famiglietti and John Wyler of St. Robert's overcame early jitters and proceeded to stage a shooting duel. Famiglietti received a little more help from his mates, however, as they managed to pull away in the fourth period.

Ken Oppenheim, Ian Begg, Stephen Martin, Brian Benoit and Tim Foley all notched two points.

Wyler led the attack for the losers with 8 points and John Camillus had 6. Mike Lombard and Mike Collings played effective defense.

St. Augustine's A, 11-10

A well-balanced scoring attack spelled victory for coach Anthony Russo's St. Augustine's A squad.

It was tight from the start. Clutch free throws by Gene Doran and Todd Murray kept things close for the A team, but Colin Arsenault answered with six points to give Ballardvale a temporary advantage.

However, Toby Guzowski and Brian Landry provided late heroics by knocking home a pair of hoops, sealing the gusty Ballardvale team's fate.

Doran and Guzowski led the St. A's attack with 4 points, respectively, Landry finished with 2 while Todd Murray's lone free throw proved to be decisive. John Castanza and Patrick Russo also figured heavily in the win.

Arsenault struck for 6 points for Ballardvale, while Wendy Darling added 4. Brent Campbell and Tim Grogan played aggressively.

St. Robert's A, 7-5

Defense dominated the season opener for St. Robert's A and Temple Emanuel.

Todd Cadragan's bucket put St. Robert's ahead early, but Temple's Josh Nelken canned a pair of free throws to tie the game. Another Cadragan hoop boosted St. Robert's to a 4-2 half-time advantage.

Nelken banged home another charity toss in the third stanza and teammate Al Shenker hit a jumper. But, Greg Buia scored what would prove to be the gamewinner for St. Robert's.

A fourth-period free throw by Stephen Marchlik rounded out the scoring.

Cadragan led all scorers with 4 points, while Nelken ended up with 3.

St. Augustine's B, 16-6

St. Augustine's B and E squared off in this parish skirmish with the B team prevailing on the scoreboard.

Eric Burt and Jeff Lembo combined to give St. Augustine's B a 3-2 edge in period one. Three Todd Harris' scores propelled a B unit run of 10 consecutive points and 15-2 advantage. They never looked back.

St. Robert's Takes First

By Rick Harrison

St. Robert's A grabbed sole possession of first place in the well-balanced Andover Church Basketball League Intermediate Gold Division, trimming Christ A 29-4, while St. Augustine A edged St. Robert's B 34-29 in action at the West Elementary School gym.

SRA is now 2-0 and holds a one-game advantage over co-runnersup St. Augustine A and SRB.

St. Robert's A, 29-4

St. Robert's A and Christ A are basically the same teams that finished second and third respectively in the ACBL Intermediate Blue Division last year, and SRA chalked up a tight 21-19 triumph when the teams collided last season.

This time around St. Robert's A was never in trouble, bolting to an 8-2 first quarter lead and building from there.

Christ A improved immeasurably on defense since its opening game, but the club is still having problems cashing in offensively.

Mark Green led the SRA attack with 8 points, Patrick Hayes pocketed 7, Kevin Murphy 6, Dave Carriere 4, Mark Shwetz 2 and Steve Spinelli 2.

Jason Blandini also played well for St. Robert's.

Ken Gable and Dave Ahouse had the lone baskets for Christ A, while solid defensive efforts were contributed by Mike Hagerty, Dave Hughes, Bob Nash, Paul Lotheridge, Matt Abernathy and Chris McBride.

St. Augustine A, 34-29

The winners took a 14-8 lead at halftime of this seesaw battle, seven different players scoring one fieldgoal apiece in the diversified attack.

Matt Perry and Mike Talty led a 13-4 third quarter run that put St. Robert's B ahead, 21-18, but St. Augustine A won it with a 16-8 fourth period surge ignited by Mike LeBreck, Mike Tiberii, Paul Lembo and Brendan Sharkey (four points apiece).

St. Augustine was very patient on offense, taking only good shots and hitting on a high percentage of its outside attempts.

Sharkey, who shared team-high scoring honors with 6 points, swished three 20-footers.

Frank Morris did all the damage for St. Augustine's E with six points. His baskets were the product of fine passing by Diane D'Angelo and Ryan Lisiak.

St. Augustine's C, 30-0

This one was tight until St. Augustine's C ran off 30 straight points on a young, but determined, St. Augustine's D ball club.

Peter Cookson led the scoring with 12 point, Charles Towne was next with 6 and Chris Corcoran and Dan Hansberry accounted for 4 each. Patricia Lopez and Shane McMaster tingled the twine for two markers apiece.

The D team hopes to get untracked next week, led by the likes of Jeff Arsenault and Jim Holland.

Temperature

It's normal for external body temperature to vary by as much as eight degrees. Typically, it's hands and feet that are colder since they are the farthest from your heart. A woman's feet average a temperature of about 86 degrees, whereas her torso area is approximately 94 degrees.

St. Robert's inside players, Dave Carnes and Mike Talty, had an off night shooting and talented guard Matt Perry didn't heat up until the second half.

SRB also saw one of its prime performers, Todd Musteraite, elevated to the Senior Division.

Tiberii, Lembo and Sharkey finished with 6 points each while LeBreck, Jeff Hurley and Paul Woods had 4 points apiece to guide St. Augustine A.

Pat Finn and Peter Reming added buckets, and Jay Grassis played well defensively.

Perry led all scorers with 15 points (13 in the second half), Talty pocketed 7, and other fieldgoals were notched by Carnes, Andy Bedell and Ryan Beal.

Dan French converted a free throw for SRB, whose other standouts were Jeff Foley, Tim Martin and Hunter Lochmann.

St. Augustine's C 12

St. Robert's E 14

A feisty St. Robert's team pulled from behind to score four fourth-quarter points and win this exciting game by a score of 14-12. St. Augustine's Mike D'Angelo held his team in the lead for the first three quarters with 8 points. Kevin Murphy contributed 4 points. St. Robert's players Todd Green and Reed Newton both sank first-quarter baskets and Chris Shea added second-quarter points. St. A's pulled ahead in the third quarter, despite Mark Baker and Chris Klein's scoring efforts for St. Robert's. St. A's was held scoreless in the fourth quarter while Mike Zetlam and Chris Jarek put St. Robert's over the top.

St. Robert's D 33 - South B 4

St. Robert's poured on the scoring power in a clearly one-sided game. Michael Kelley led his team to a 33-4 victory with 17 points, Scott Lenzi followed with 6 points, Michael Marchlik and David Ward scored 4 points each and Matt Reghitto contributed 2. Alan Hanley was the only South player to score, tallying 4 points, but the entire team deserves credit for sticking with the game. Chad Livingston and John O'Neil turned in aggressive defensive games, but were overpowered by the strong St. Robert's offense.

St. Augustine's E 20

St. Robert's C 22

In fantastic overtime play, St. Robert's pulled out a 22-20 victory. Garret Ferris and James Landry scored for St. Augustine's in the first quarter. Their points were answered by six from Marc Selvitelli. Anthony Russo scored for St. A's in the second quarter and Chris Dziadosz and Erig Begg scored for St. Robert's. Ferris and Landry had brought St. A's to 18 points by the end of the fourth quarter and Selvitelli had done the same for St. Robert's with help from Chris Fletcher and Mike Pettouito. The score was tied after regulation play. Dziadosz scored

"exceptional" boy soprano, will portray Amahl in the 90-minute, one-act opera composed by Gian-Carlo Menotti. Other leading roles will be filled by Kathleen Zalla as Amahl's mother; Ralph Wirtz, Paul Dollard and Bruno Mattedi as the three kings (Kaspar, Melchior and Balthazar); and Robert Mattedi as the page.

In addition to playing the synthesizers, Anita will play piano, while Scott will play percussion as well as the computer; Pierre LeMieux will play bass violin and John Stevens, trumpet.

With Anita as director and conductor and Scott as assistant director, the show is being staged by Cynthia Hollenbeck as choreographer, and Pam LeMieux as producer and technical director.

Anita has been the full-time music director and music liturgy coordinator at the church for just over one year; she is also well-known as the musical director of many theatre productions for local schools and community groups. An Andover resident, she has belonged to St. Augustine's parish since 1971.

Scott says he's "been a musician for as long as I can remember": He's played percussion in several productions under Anita's direction, most recently in West Side Story, and he composes and arranges music as a hobby.

He is also a self-employed magician ("Great Scott"), a part-time teacher of computer-related courses for the town's Community Services department, and a full-time quality control inspector for Amkey in Wilmington.

Anita was inspired to try computer-generated music by a professional production of the musical Cats, which was performed to "virtually all computer music. I thought, wouldn't this be wonderful? As a music director, I could see so much potential for the future in it."

The director approached Scott with her "fun idea" last September. He had been using his computer to compose and arrange music for about a year, but had never performed with it before an audience. He admits that he was skeptical at first, but soon concluded that "the time was right — it just seemed like the thing to do this time."

They began with "a lot of talking," Scott says, and listening to a recording of Amahl, to decide which instruments they would try to reproduce on the computer, and how those "voices" should sound. The flute, for example, presented a special challenge: "It took a long time to get the flute sound." Other voices (such as a pipe organ) were developed but later abandoned because they did not blend in well with the others.

Next they began "pulling the score apart and really orchestrating it for our equipment," Anita explains, "figuring out how to do it," Scott adds, as they went along. The process was difficult and slow at first, but the partners began to work more quickly as they became more familiar with the score and the "voices" they had chosen.

Scott programmed the Alpha Syntauri to produce musical voices in the same way that one would program any computer for any application, by tapping commands onto a typewriter-like keyboard. Once programmed, the computer "plays" its two synthesizers to make music.

Attached beneath its conventional keyboard, the Syntauri also has a piano-like keyboard, which the operator can use to play the computer himself, or to program music into the computer. The Syntauri can be programmed to play up to 16 tracks (that is, 16 different voices) which can then be "layered" to play together.

Scott has pre-programmed two pieces for Amahl, a complicated three-minute dance number, and a slightly shorter piece to accompany the courtly march of the kings. During the performance, the computer will play these two pieces, accompanied by human musicians on live instruments. (For the rest of the production, Scott will actually play the computer live.)

Meanwhile, Anita will play three synthesizers: a Korg Delta string synthesizer, a Korg MS-20 modular synthesizer, and a Casiotone 201 preset synthesizer. Synthesizers — which, unlike computers, have been used quite commonly by professional musicians for several years — can be set to produce the sounds of various instruments, and are played with keyboards (much like electric organs).

The director and her assistant are pleased, and more than a little surprised, by what they have wrought. Listening to the computer play its pre-programmed dance music for the first time, Anita thought, "This is really pretty good!" she recalls, laughing. It will sound even better when it's reverberating through the church, which boasts "very good" acoustics, Scott notes.

For the most part, cast members have been "really ecstatic" about the opera's computer music, Anita says. "The kids are really excited about it. So many of them are into computers, and they have a greater understanding of it than many adults."

"Some adults just can't believe it — they say, 'This is amazing!'," she adds. Those who work with computers have been especially impressed by what they've heard, while others "just don't understand it, and don't have an opinion."

Scott expects a similarly mixed reaction from the audiences on Jan. 4 and 5. He hopes they will like the music, yet believes that "some people will be intimidated by it. But it won't be totally electronic — we'll have acoustic instruments in front of us, too, so the electronics and acoustics will balance each other off."

"It's sort of a strange thing," he says, "but we don't really have acoustic instruments anymore." Today, he explains, most people listen to music on radio, stereo, or tape — so they are, in fact, listening to electronics, and not "real instruments" at all.)

Excited by what she's learned from working on Amahl, Anita hopes to work with computer music again for future productions. "This has opened up a whole new dimension for me," she says.

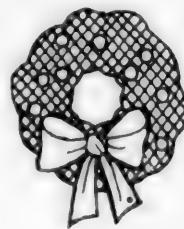

Scott, too, has found the project "a learning experience" — now that he's created that flute sound, for instance, he intends to use it again. "I want to do a lot more of this," he says. "I'm going to get better at it. It's in its infancy for me." (Adds Anita: "I think Scott's a genius.")

Now the director's final concern is how to set up the equipment for the production — computer, synthesizers, acoustic instruments and music stands — and move from one keyboard to another during the performance without tripping over all those cords plugged into all those electrical outlets.

"My one fear," Anita confesses, "is, what if we blow a fuse? That would be a nightmare!"

But Scott calmly reassures her that he has taken precautions to avoid electrical overloading. Besides, he adds, "even if we lost all our power, Anita could do it all on piano. The rest is just enhancing."

too, they say.

"Wash hair," comes the sign language command from the first table. The student signs the command.

The cost of a day habilitation, or "day hab" as it is called, education is about $10,500. Day hab trainees follow a very strict schedule, says Lenhard. Each day they start out with vocational training, followed by the morning break. Next is the language class and an acquisition lesson — where they learn new skills; later a community outing and lunch. In the final lesson of each day the mentally retarded adults work on learning number and money.

Back at Sharon Lenhard's table she asks one of her students a question.

"What would you rather have for lunch," she says, "a hamburger or a rug?"

"A rug," is his answer.

"What?" Lenhard asks.

"A rug," he tells her.

"What?" he is asked again.

"A rug," he replies.

"Do you eat rugs?" Lenhard asks the man.

"Yes!" she is told.

"No!" the teacher corrects.

"Do you eat rugs?" she repeats.

"No!" the student replies. Lenhard smiles.

C.L.A.S.S. runs on an annual budget of $1 million, said McCaffrey. Parents don't pay for their children to attend the C.L.A.S.S. programs. The tuition is paid for in different ways including Medicaid and state Department of Mental Health reimbursements, explained McCaffrey.

The companies, who contract their work out to the C.L.A.S.S. day activity program, pay C.L.A.S.S. a fee for the finished products. Other income comes from the federal Department of Education, said McCaffrey, in the form of a three year grant of $87,000 a year, the second year of the C.L.A.S.S. award began in October, the director explained.

And a janitorial work crew of C.L.A.S.S. trainees also bring money into the program with their Clean With C.L.A.S.S. business. The adults do maintenance work in local industries and office buildings, said McCaffrey.

Day activity is the most advanced level inside in the C.L.A.S.S. building.

On Tuesday the retarded adults were stuffing envelopes, sorting catalogues and constructing corrugated boxes at the seven large tables that fill the room. As in the other C.L.A.S.S. workrooms, the radio is on. Some of the trainees are talking to the people at their table. Others aren't talking. And some cannot talk.

Across the room a man in a wheelchair is working to make a box that will hold literature for a local company. He must insert three small cardboard dividers into a larger cardboard piece with three slots in it, one divider goes in each slot. But sometimes the cardboard slot is clogged with cardboard that wasn't punched out by the machine that cut the slots. The man must learn to remove the cardboard from the slot before trying to jam the divider into place. Because he cannot hold the larger piece of cardboard while inserting the smaller dividers into their places a special holder has been fashioned to hold the large cardboard piece. It is two metal file card drawers held together with a clamp. The large piece of cardboard is wedged between the two drawers.

For each worker in the day activity room such specialized equipment must be invented by staffers to compensate for what the retarded students they cannot do.

Once all the three dividers are in place on the large cardboard piece the creation is turned over and another identical cardboard piece slides onto the large piece to hold the three smaller dividers in place. The finished product fits into a box that divides the inside of the container into six small compartments.

But some of the day activity trainees cannot understand how to turn their cardboard pieces over to insert the final piece once they have their three dividers in place, explains production manager Gerry Daria, who is one of the staff members monitoring work in the large room.

The man in the wheelchair has a portable typewriter and steno pad set up next to his work station. Since he cannot speak he types notes to his teachers to let them know what he needs. But he cannot read. So on the steno pad is a list of a dozen words with a letter next to each word. When the man needs help he types an "H." when he has to use the toilet he types a "T," and his teacher's names each have an abbreviated letter that he will type should he need their help. This is a new communication system created just for this man. He is learning how to recognize, not read, the list of words on his pad of paper. A glance at his typed sheet shows his name typed several times and other groups of letters, spelling nothing, also typed on the page.

The work in the day activity room, where the staff to trainee ratio is five to one, is repetitive. It is not threatening, says Daria.

"Most of the trainees cannot read and some can't count," he says, adding, "they never will be able to."

It costs C.L.A.S.S. between $7,000 and $8,000 a year for each person in the day activity program. Every two weeks the day activity trainees are given a paycheck, just like their teachers. The trainees are paid for the amount of work they accomplish, piecework.

Some of the trainees in the day activity room will parlay their skills into jobs in local companies. Others in the large airy room are in the transitional employment program, called TEP. TEP trainees are in the day activity program part-time and also in local companies working at similar tasks. Supervision for each TEP employee runs to $3,500 a year.

It is break time in the day activity room and the trainees leave their tables to get something to eat, look outside or talk with friends. A few of the adults in wheelchairs are being wheeled by other trainees out of the room for a few minutes.

The man at the typewriter sits there for a long time before deciding to make his way out of the room for his break. Slowly he uses his feet to inch down the hall. A half an hour has passed and the man has just reached the hall outside the large day activity room as the break ends as the other adults are returning to their work stations.

Bob Harris runs the building and programs at C.L.A.S.S. He has a long Christmas wish list filled with equipment needs for the 102 C.L.A.S.S. trainees.

They need chairs and tables, he said. "The population we serve is rough on chairs and tables."

Classroom chairs and folding or formica tables are best. File cabinets are also scarce. Harris's list includes refrigerators, couches and easy chairs, electric typewriters, coffee makers, shelving units, bookcases, and, of course, radios.

Donations may be used or new. Just call the C.L.A.S.S. office, said Harris. "We will pick the stuff up."

There are also C.L.A.S.S. trainees that cannot be found in the Haverhill Street building. They are part of the work activity program.

Some of these adults work at maintenance jobs or in food service positions, still others assemble small parts and some repair computers. They are employed at places such as Gould Electronics, Andover Office Center, Mark Packaging Inc., all of Andover, and also with Environmental Maintenance Services of Melrose, which works cleaning buildings at Phillips Academy.

The reports to C.L.A.S.S. from the companies where the work activity trainees are employed are glowing. Each C.L.A.S.S. employee is paid what anyone else doing the job earns. The companies that employ the mentally retarded adults from C.L.A.S.S. receive tax credits for employing mentally retarded persons, said McCaffrey.

The acceptance by the local businesses has been fantastic, McCaffrey said.

"These companies sought us out," he said. "Contrary to what you would expect the response in Andover has been immense."

Jenna Pease is making progress, her father is saying. She has been coming to C.L.A.S.S. every weekday since July. But, he says, the progress is very slow.

"Retarded children don't make a lot of progress," Leander Pease explains. "But they have some very good people here. Jenna talks about C.L.A.S.S. all the time. Her speech is much better."

Through January a taped public service announcement will air on a local radio station. The message is part of the C.L.A.S.S. Christmas fund drive. The voice belongs to Leander Pease.

"Hello, my name is Leander Pease and I am speaking to you on behalf of my daughter Jennifer. Jenna is a severely handicapped individual who attends the basic skills program..."

Editor's Note: To contribute items or funds to the C.L.A.S.S. Christmas drive or for use in the daily programs at C.L.A.S.S. contact director Robert McCaffrey at 475-2492.

Channel Has Successful Year

Channel Building Company is completing one of the most aggressive years in its history. The firm has entered a positive, highly charged period in both project work and internal management.

On the management side, Richard E. Whittier became president, bringing new direction and positive momentum; the estimating and market/project planning departments have been expanded; and the computerized CPM project scheduling system is now fully "on line." Two organizational changes will give clients more complete and efficient service delivery. Channel Service Co. has been established to manage smaller-sized construction, repair or renovation projects. The Bayfield Company, a sister firm involved in real estate development and property management, has moved its operations to Channel headquarters. This move consolidates Channel's development, planning, design and construction capabilities under one roof. These refinements have prompted discussion of a new corporate headquarters and broadening Channel's markets to encompass residential and health-related developments.

1984 was a watershed year for construction activity. Twelve major projects were completed, including two 200,000+ square foot structures, the largest in the company's history. Almost 1,000,000 square feet were constructed or renovated for Andover Savings Bank (Symmes, Maini & McKee, Architects), Andover Town Offices (Inter-Design, Architects), BASF Corporation (Inter-Design, Architects), Century Laminators, Inc. (Inter-Design, Architects), Chelmsford Tech Center (Commerce Way Assocs., Developers; Inter-Design, Architects) Commonwealth Place (Commonwealth Place Assocs., Developer; Inter-Design, Architects), Daly Drug Corp. (CNA, Architects), Klein Assocs. (Inter-Design, Architects), New England Telephone Co. (Inter-Design, Architects), 4 Lyberty Way (Eagle Realty Trust, Developer; Inter-Design, Architects), Toys 'r' Us, Inc. (Cassidy Corp., Architects), Tranti Systems Inc. (Inter-Design, Architects). The completed projects range from multi-story mixed-use and office buildings, high-tech R & D, testing and clean room manufacturing complexes, to a computerized warehouse/railside distribution facility.

In addition, seven new projects totalling almost 300,000 square feet and valued over $12,000,000 are currently under or about to begin construction. They include Andover Savings Bank (Inter-Design, Architects), Atlee Corporation (Inter-Design, Architects), Contact East (Inter-Design, Architects), 175 Highland Ave./Needham Office Building (Winhall Realty Trust, Developer; Philip Locashio, Architect), 4 New England Tech Center (Spaulding & Co., Developer; ADD Inc., Architects), Orthopedic Assocs. (Inter-Design, Architects), and USCIBard (Inter-Design, Architects). These projects range from financial institution, medical, Class A speculative and corporate office to clean room and other high-tech manufacturing complexes. Three of these seven projects were awarded by repeat clients, USCIBard, the Andover Savings Bank and Spaulding and Co., Developers: proof of Channel's dedication to progressive management, integrity and the ability to deliver clients the finest in Design/Build or Team Construction services.

Dental Program Announced

The Massachusetts Dental Society has undertaken a statewide public service Access program to improve the dental health of Massachusetts citizens who, because of neglect, financial considerations or misunderstanding, do not receive necessary oral examinations or proper dental care. The three-part program covers:

Dental care for senior citizens on a limited income who are not covered by prepaid dental insurance or Medicaid. Dental treatment will include all needed care at courtesy fees to be negotiated privately between dentist and patient.

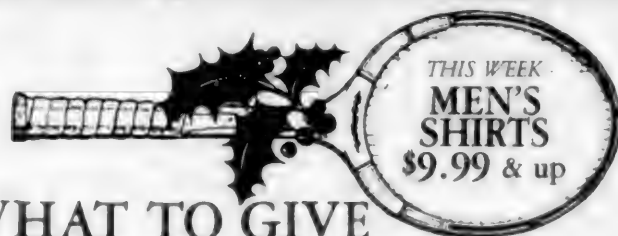

Availability of dentures for people of all ages on a limited income who are not covered by prepaid dental insurance or Medicaid. Information on local dentists with barrier-free offices and who are trained and equipped to treat patients who are developmentally disabled or handicapped.

According to Dr. Michael Sheff, Massachusetts Dental Society Access chairman, the program "involves dentists from virtually every city and town in the state who have volunteered in this worthwhile effort to make professional dental care available. Currently, more than 900 dentists are participating in the public service program.

The Massachusetts Dental Society has established a 1-800-342-8747 toll-free number, in operation Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., to call for information.

H-P Makes New Monitors

Two new adult-patient monitors from Hewlett-Packard Company, the HP 78353B and HP 78354A, have capabilities that provide low-priced solutions for many healthcare departments.

The HP 78353B adult-patient monitor has full networking capability, expanded parameters and improved ECG algorithms.

The HP 78354A adult-patient monitor has all of the capabilities of the HP 78353B plus a programmable non-invasive blood-pressure monitoring option, which uses the oscillometric technique of measurement.

A conventional inflatable patient cuff measures blood pressure non-invasively. After inflation, the cuff is deflated in steps while the monitor measures the pressure oscillations via the air line connected to the cuff.

Within seconds of complete deflation, systolic, diastolic and mean pressures are shown as a numerical display, which is retained until the next pressure sampling.

Readings may be obtained upon demand at the press of a button, or the HP 78354A may be set in automatic mode, taking a new reading over periods ranging from two minutes to one hour. Values are stored in the trend memory for analysis, as are trends for other configurations.

Both adult monitors can transmit and receive information from other Hewlett-Packard monitors and systems through HP Care-Net critical-care network. This sophisticated local-area network allows high-speed communication of accurate patient waveforms and vital-sign and alarm information among every bedside monitor/terminal in the network to aid the clinician in making therapy decisions.

The bidirectional information flow makes it possible for the clinician to see what is happening throughout the unit from any bedside monitor/terminal or patient-information center.

Like its predecessors in the HP 7835X series, Model 78353B is configurable over seven parameters. The HP 78354A has an added eighth non-invasive blood-pressure parameter.

Options cover selections of ECG, hemodynamic pressures, plethysmographs, temperatures, respiration and auxiliary signal input (e.g., from a capnometer to produce a capnogram waveform or an external invasive pressure). Up to three separate waveforms plus all alphanumeric data can be shown on the screen. Hard-copy capability is available for all displays.

Both short- and long-term trend ranges also have been added. There are now 20- and 40-minute trends with high resolution and two-, four-, eight- and 24-hour trends for longer-term overview of patient progress. Trend display is available on all configured parameters as an option.

Used in tandem with the HP 78173A and HP 78173W analog bedside records, both U.S. priced under $2,000, the new adult monitors have applications in many healthcare departments. They provide compact, low-priced solutions for the operating, recovery and emergency rooms, the non-invasive capability, necessary for the day surgical center and the power, communications and parameters necessary for the ICU/CCU.

Significant improvements to the signal-processing algorithm of these monitors include detection of ventricular fibrillation, improved recognition and rejection of pacemaker pulses, full-lead capability and defibrillator synchronization. ECG and pressure are now ESU (electrosurgery-unit) filtered.

In the event of an alarm, any bedside monitor can be used to read the monitor giving off the alarm. During non-alarm situations, each monitor can read any other monitor for general overview. Depending on specific hospital requirements, many different types of alarm configurations are possible.

In spite of its increased capability, the HP 78353B remains in the same compact housing. It

Kitchen Design

by David A. Clement, Designer

The "two-wall" or "corridor" plan provides a kitchen with counters, cabinets and major appliances that face each other from opposite walls, separated by an aisle. Ideally, there should be no through traffic in a corridor kitchen for it disrupts the efficiency of the triangular work pattern. Designers recommend a minimum of 48 to 54 inches for the width of the aisle separating the two wall elements. For kitchens in which there is only one cook, 24 to 30 inches will do. It is recommended that corridor kitchens be utilized only in rooms that are at least 8 feet and no more than 10 feet wide. One feature of this plan is that it negates the need for corner cabinets.

At this time the staff of WINDSOR KITCHENS would like to wish all our readers and customers a very Merry Christmas and a healthy and happy New Year. It has been our pleasure serving

Andover Native Fatally Injured In Accident

Jon B. Higgins, 45, an internationally acclaimed singer of South Indian music and professor of music at Wesleyan University, died December 7 when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver near his home in Middletown, Conn.

In 1978 Higgins was named director of Wesleyan's Center for the Arts, widely known as the home of faculty who were pioneers in the development of ethnomusicology as a discipline and as a center for non-western music, particularly Indian music. He already had achieved prominence and a wide following in India as the first westerner to master the difficult art of singing South Indian classical (Karnatak) music. In his nearly seven years as director, he made very significant contributions toward the building of Wesleyan's program in South Indian music.

"This is an unspeakable tragedy," Wesleyan President Colin G. Capbell said. "An internationally acclaimed artist who had the courage and the capacity to master the art of another culture, Jon Higgins was also a fine scholar and a committed teacher."

"He loved the arts and he loved Wesleyan. He served his university with extraordinary devotion as director of the Center for the Arts. As academic planner he was perceptive, thoughtful and humane in his consideration of the future of the arts at Wesleyan."

"My heart goes out to his family, his colleagues and his many admirers here and abroad, who, with Wesleyan, have suffered a devastating loss."

Born Sept. 18, 1939, Higgins grew up in Andover where he graduated from Phillips Andover Academy. He obtained a bachelor's degree (1962), a master's (1964) and a doctorate (1973) in ethnomusicology from Wesleyan.

After performing a concert of South Indian music at Carnegie Hall in May 1964, he went to India on a Fulbright Scholarship to study Karnatak music under T. Viswanathan, one of India's foremost musicians and now an artist in residence at Wesleyan.

Higgins' first public performance took place April 11, 1965, barely six months after his arrival, before a crowd of 10,000 listeners at the Tyagaraja festival in Tanjore.

"The audience was amazed and in awe," Viswanathan said of that performance. "He met challenge after challenge, becoming a full-fledged performer in the tradition."

Higgins, who won a highly unusual two renewals of his Fulbright Scholarship, remained in India until 1967. He performed frequently in concert all over India, recorded two LP records and appeared on television and radio.

He returned to India in the 1981-82 academic year as a senior fellow of the American Institute of Indian Studies. A performance tour of 12 concerts received wide and positive critical attention. The tour included a performance in New Delhi hosted by the U.S. Ambassador to India. Higgins recorded his third commercial release and performed on radio and television.

"He was still learning, still in love with his art," Viswanathan said.

Jean Shaw, events manager of the Center for the Arts and a long-time colleague of Higgins, said, "He demanded and also gave the best, looking for artistic excellence in his performance and in his work."

He was appointed assistant professor of music at York University, Toronto (1971) and was promoted to associate professor with tenure (1974) after completing his doctoral work at Wesleyan.

He became assistant dean of York's faculty of fine arts (1976) and director of the graduate program in fine arts.

Higgins served as councillor and former secretary of the Society for Ethnomusicology, was a member of the board of directors of the Society for Asian Music and member of the ethnomusicology steering committee of the American Association of Asian Studies.

on a basket in a two-minute overtime period to put St. Robert's ahead 20-18. John Shea was fouled with no time remaining, and in a dramatic clutch situation, hit both foul shots to tie the game 20-20. Selvitelli scored in sudden death overtime to carry St. Robert's to victory.

St. Robert's F 33 - Christ B 8

St. Robert's scored only two points in the first quarter (Paul Filosi), but turned on the scoring machine to win the game 33-8. The score was tied at the end of the first quarter, Filosi's basket having been answered by Joel Dodge. St. Robert's defense held the Christ team scoreless in the second quarter while Ian Timmons, Adam Ferry, Adam Ruma and Teddy Fazio racked up eight points. They extended their lead in the third period with baskets by Jonathan Merenda and Ryan Cassily, but Christ was able to core three points and a basket and foul shot by Ben Russell. Russell scored three more points. Merenda, Timmons, Fazio Cassily and Filosi compiled 19 fourth-quarter points to put the final score at 33-8.

Temple Emanuel 19

St. Augustine's D 17

In a close and exciting game, the Temple Emanuel team was able to hold on to the lead they established early in the game and win by the score of 19-17. They compiled 10 first-quarter points on foul shots by Mike Taylor and baskets from Eric Greenstein and Adam Goddess. Paul Vallee scored two points for St. Augustine's. Matt Ouellette was the only player to score in the second quarter, adding two more points for St. Augustine's. The gap was shortened by seven third-quarter points for St. A's by Brett Cox and Ouellette scoring. Fourth-quarter scoring was even; Mike Taylor, Marc Shapiro and Greenstein allied six points for Temple Emanuel and Cox and Ouellette, six for St. A's.

St. Augustine's B 8

Ballardvale United 21

Brian Novelline led the Ballardvale team to a decisive victory with 14 points. He and Mike Henry put their team to a seven-point lead over St. Augustine's in the first quarter (Matt Harris put in a free throw for St. A's). Paul Bernardin's foul shot as not enough for St. A's to stay in the game; Novelline extended Ballardvale's lead with four points in the second quarter. Third-quarter action saw Jason Clark and Matt Harris score 4 points for St. A's and Novelline and Rejji Hayes score 4 points for Ballardvale. Novelline, Chris Lowe and Mike Henry brought Ballardvale's final tally to 21, while Tom Torrisi's 2 points brought St. A's to only 8.

Carlisle Street Residents Want Parking Consideration

Like their Shawsheen Village neighbors on Enmore Street, residents of Carlisle Street would like permission to park their cars on the sidewalk during the months that the ban against all-night winter parking is enforced.

That request will remain a possibility until Jan. 7, when the Board of Selectmen will decide whether to grant Carlisle Street homeowners an exemption to the ban, which prohibits all-night parking on streets and sidewalks.

Until then, the selectmen said Monday night, the Police Department should refrain from ticketing residents of that street for parking on the sidewalk all night.

E. Virginia O'Connor of 11 Carlisle St. told the board that in past years, under an agreement with former town managers Jared S.A. Clark and J. Maynard Austin, she and her neighbors have parked on the sidewalk at night without receiving tickets. When the police began ticketing them two years ago, she said, the residents received the same permission from Town Manager Kenneth Mahony.

Now, however, the police have begun ticketing some — but not all — cars parked on the sidewalk, O'Connor said. Residents of the six houses on Carlisle Street would like a "definite answer" on whether they'll be allowed to park on the sidewalk or not, she said.

Alice O'Toole of 7 Carlisle St. said that she had never received a ticket until two years ago, when she sought permission from town officials to park on the sidewalk. The ticketing then stopped, she said, until this month.

Manager Mahony said he recalled the residents' request two years ago, but had no record of an exemption being allowed. To his knowledge, the manager said, three households on Enmore Street are the only ones in town allowed an exemption. (He noted that the selectmen granted that exemption over the "extreme opposition" of the manager, DPW director and police chief.)

The selectmen agreed to delay acting on the request until their next meeting, scheduled for Monday, Jan. 7; in the meantime, they indicated, they will look at the street. Selectman William Dalton also suggested that the police "refrain from ticketing" until the board makes a decision next month.

Dalton added that while Carlisle Street residents might be granted an exemption to the parking ban, the selectmen have to be careful about granting too many exemptions to the rule. The ban is meant to keep cars off the streets and out of the way of snow plows during winter nights.

Hughes Acting Principal

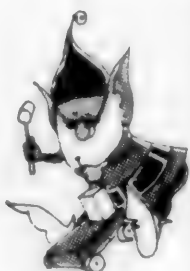

It's musical chairs again in the town's secondary schools as administrators have been moved around to fill in for Doherty Junior High School Principal Richard McGrail who will be recovering from surgery at Lawrence General Hospital for some time, the School Committee was told on Tuesday night.

Jack Hughes, assistant principal at the Bartlet Street junior high school, has returned to Doherty from his temporary post as acting assistant principal at Andover High School. He will take over while McGrail is hospitalized. Hughes went to Andover High last month to fill in for Stephen Richardson, the assistant principal there, who was moved up to the principal's position while Principal Mary Athey Jennings is out on pregnancy leave.

The now vacant assistant principal position at Andover High is being temporarily filled by high school head science teacher Timothy Thomas. Thomas's teaching job is now vacant and has been advertised.

In other personnel matters the committee upgraded Karen Foose's job from that of full-time aide to half-time teacher and half-time aide in the resource room at West Junior High. The Andover resident will be paid a teaching salary based on $8,849, retroactive to Oct. 29, and an aide's salary of $5.29 per hour.

said Mike with a laugh, as George, who is blind, was soon telling residents the day's announcements Monday through Friday as well as on weekends.

George had another audience when he was much younger. His voice went out on the airwaves over 40 years ago as he sang to his brother's piano ballads on two Boston radio stations until the station manager told him he would have to recruit sponsors for his shows. He gave up the radio singing then, he said.

The Academy Manor residents and employees that passed George and Mike's room that morning were curious about the collection of visitors there. Each had a few words for the two men or their young guests. And George, using his acute sense of sound, would guess who the guest was before Mike could get a chance to mention their name.

"He reminds me of my grandfather," Dan Ely said of Mike Lynch.

"What do you mean," asked Mike, chuckling, "because of my bald head?"

"No," Dan quietly replied. "You just seem a lot like him."

Grant

Secretary of State Michael J. Connolly announced that the new Commonwealth Museum has received a $122,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The Commonwealth Museum, scheduled to open in the fall of 1985 as part of the new Massachusetts State Archives, Museum and Records Center, at Columbia Point, Boston, was awarded the funds to expand a major exhibit on Shays' Rebellion, a late 18th century uprising by Massachusetts farmers.

Avoid flammable Christmas decorations such as tissue paper, cotton batting, flock and some foamed plastics. Stick with non-combustible and flame-retardant decorations. Don't make a bonfire of your gift wrappings and evergreen boughs in the fireplace.

The Audi 4000S quattro is so logical.

It uses all four wheels all of the time for the good reason that permanent all wheel drive maximizes traction efficiency by equally distributing the engine's power to all four wheels.

And when each wheel is then surrounded with independent suspension and disc brakes, the result is an incredibly enhanced feeling of driver control. All of the time. In any weather. In the city or on the highway.

And all achieved with no loss of fuel efficiency, unlike other four wheel drive systems.*

Permanent all wheel drive significantly does improve directional control, cornering capabilities and unswerving stopping power.

The power source for all four wheels is a 5-cylinder, 2.2 litre engine that accelerates from 0 to 50 in 6.9 seconds.

Feel what it's like to have all four wheels working for you. Test drive the new 4000S quattro. With this car, Audi engineers have taken the simple fact that a car has four wheels to a particularly effective conclusion.

*EPA EST. MPG: 22 EST. HWY. Compare these estimates to the EST. MPG of other cars. Your mileage may vary depending on speed, weather, and trip length. Your actual highway mileage will probably be less.

The art of engineering.

Every car has four wheels.
Only quattro uses them all.

Susan Stella and Cathy Beattie, Proprietor of Andover Antiques
Andover Antiques: Variety Is The Specialty

There is just about enough room in any nook or cranny of Andover Antiques for a customer to turn around. But if he or she lingers among the displays, it's not the closeness of the room that makes shopping slow; it's the merchandise. Country pine furniture, hand-stitched quilts, oak dressers, mounds of oriental rugs, chests, cases of jewelry and sterling silver, tables filled with oriental porcelain, wooden boxes of tools that are as foreign to today's power saws as the glove box is to a plastic bag, even an antique rocking horse—the inventory begs to be examined.

Andover Antiques, formerly

Old Center Antiques of North Andover, is a co-operative of five dealers. Proprietors Susan Stella and Cathy Beattie specialize in pine and country furniture and quilts; dealer Charlie Nargozian sells and repairs oriental rugs. Dealers Vic Farand and Tony Circo both specialize in oak and other furniture. Each dealer takes a turn at staffing the shop, and has a general knowledge of his or her co-workers' acquisitions.

Customers come to Andover Antiques for the wide selection of merchandise and competitive prices, according to the shop's dealers. Owner Susan Stella explains that she keeps abreast of current prices in the area to make sure hers are in line. "With five dealers and limited space," she says, "Having a steady turnover in merchandise is important." In addition, the shop keeps a "request file"; if a customer is looking for a specific item, his request is noted and filed. Then, when one of the dealers acquires the piece, he or she notifies the potential buyer.

Andover Antiques moved to its Andover location, 188 North Main Street, at the intersection of Stevens Street, in December. The shop is open from 10 AM to 5 PM Monday through Saturday. Phone 475-5211.

Kampus Kuts Presents A Gift With Style

Last year you gave your sister Anne a purse—the one she's never used. What do you do for an encore this year? You're stumped. How can you play to her flare for the dramatic? How can you give her a loving gift that's personal yet not corny, unique, in the best of taste, and not likely to end up unused on her closet shelf?

Kampus Kuts of Andover offers Annie—and your mother and Aunt Sadie and little George and even cousin Geoffrey, the finicky one—a bit of holiday magic: the Kampus Kuts gift certificate.

You can give Anne the luxury of sinking into the comfort of a Kampus Kuts chair, on her own time, while a professional brings out her special beauty with a Zotos permanent. Or perhaps owner Maria Reitano or her stylists Gail Richards and Judy DeLuca can help her with the fine points of using one of the new gels or mousses. Like the experts they are, they keep up-to-date on all the latest products and techniques by attending workshops and styling shows.

Or maybe Anne'll slip into one of Sebastian's Cellophane Colors—those transparent colors that will enhance her own without bleaching her hair. But be prepared—you know Anne. She just might pick the green or burgundy tone.

Come to think of it, why not buy one for your girlfriend Alice? Kampus Kuts does the new spiked styles. They even do French braids. They serve women, children, men, students—even grandmothers. All at competitive prices.

Campus cuts is open from 9 AM to 5 PM Monday through Saturday. Tell Anne that, to get there, she'll have to walk into the Andover Inn on Chapel Avenue—that's on the Phillips Andover campus—and follow the signs that direct her to the salon on the lower level.
Telephone 470-1544. Walk-ins always welcome.

Expand CBD

on providing "housing alternatives" for Andover, "not providing office space." If CBD expansion would eliminate houses, he indicated, "I could not support it."

Yet Andover real estate agent Joseph Doherty told the board Tuesday night that there is a need and a demand for new office space downtown. He said that while the town's population has grown "quite a bit" during the past 20 years, "we haven't seen that kind of expansion in the CBD."

"There's plenty of land out there for housing," Doherty said, "but not for business. There are professional people who live in this community who would like to work here."

Andover Atty. Peter Caruso added, "Andover has to grow. There is a crying need for small businesses to locate in Andover." Many residents now working at home are ready to grow and would like to find small commercial space downtown, he said.

The attorney also noted that when old houses are converted for commercial use, the upper floors often remain residential.

Jeton replied that "there is vacant office space in this town" — citing the second floor of the Andover Savings Bank property on Main Street as one example — and asked why the town should "take away homes" to build new offices when existing offices are empty.

"What's the benefit to the town?" she asked — especially if, as Moran maintained, the need for moderate-income housing is "more pressing" than the need for more offices.

Expanding the CBD would bring its own "baggage", the planner added: more parking and traffic problems — and if the business zone is extended into residential areas, she said, those downtown problems would creep into residential neighborhoods.

As for the demand for small commercial space that Caruso described, Jeton said she receives "several calls a week from people seeking offices, but no calls from people seeking retail space."

Bradshaw offered Doherty and Caruso "no argument" that there's a demand for more office space in Andover. The question, she explained, is whether Andover has enough office space already: "When is enough?"

The board needs the information it has requested of the Community Development staff — data on vacancy rates and commercial space already available in town — before it can "make a rational decision" on the need for CBD expansion, the chairman concluded.

Assistance Requested

Mentally retarded residents of the John T. Berry Rehabilitation Center, Route 62, North Reading, would greatly benefit from holiday efforts by community groups and individuals. Ruth Nathans, Berry unit director, said that "we hope to hear from outside groups interested in sharing holiday entertainment and gifts. Many of our residents have no close relatives making community contributions particularly beneficial to clients this time of year."

WOMEN & CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT

Memorial Plaques Disappear

Two bronze plaques honoring Andover's World War I and World War II veterans have disappeared from Memorial Auditorium, and town officials have sent out the word: They'd like them back.

The large plaques, weighing 700 to 800 pounds each, once graced the auditorium, formerly part of East Junior High School and now part of Doherty Junior High. They were taken down and stored in a locked room while the school building was undergoing renovations and "survived" the construction project in fine shape, Town Manager Kenneth Mahony told the Board of Selectmen Monday night.

But now that the auditorium and two adjoining office wings have been completed, and the town is ready to put the plaques back in place, they are nowhere to be found, the manager said. Town employees have searched all over the auditorium and offices, and the bronze plaques are definitely gone, he said.

Mahony told the board the plaques will be replaced, if the originals don't turn up — but that may entail some problems. He is not sure just what the plaques looked like, he explained.

However, the manager said he has found one citizen who served on the committee that originally erected the memorial, and the former committee member hopes to find design sketches for the two plaques among her papers.

Selectman Norma Gammon told the manager she believed that each plaque listed former Punchard High School students who had served in World War I or World War II.

Selectman Gerald Silverman said he was confident the plaques were still somewhere in Andover, and would be returned. If that's the case, Mahony responded, "We're ready for them now."

Board members indicated that they would be glad to see the plaques reappear at the auditorium, with "no questions asked. We would appreciate their return," Chairman Donn Byrne concluded.

BABY TALK

by Jack Resnick

A tiny newborn requires only a tiny bed, so most parents tend to choose a bassinet or wicker basket on wheels. This is a very convenient way to move your baby from room to room with you or take outdoors for naps or airings. The standard bassinet won't be used for any length of time. Moreover it gives you a better opportunity to shop around when you're ready to acquire a crib which will be utilized for the next three or more years.

See the largest in depth selection of baby furniture in N.E. when you come to TINY TOTLAND. Open 9-5:30 Mon. & Th. 9-9. Famous makers including Morrigaux, Simmons, Childcraft and Bassett. Delivery anywhere. M/C & Visa. Free Lay-away plan. Babies toys...all ages...everything from "heaven to seven." WHY VALUE INCREASES

Very few people have lost money in real estate ownership. The reason is simple. More often than not, real estate values increase as time goes on.

There are many reasons why property value will increase, such as: bettering the property, changes in zoning, etc., but one which happens all by itself, with little help from the property owner, is inflation. Why does this happen?

To begin with, real estate is typically heavily reliant on borrowed money. Borrowers benefit from inflation because they are able to repay their loans with cheaper dollars.

Inflation can also benefit a real estate investment by generally allowing owners to increase rents by amounts greater than the expenses increase. This disproportionately increases the cash flow. The reason: Rents start out higher than expenses, and the loan payments normally remain fixed. Remember the value of investment property is always a function of its income. A dramatic increase in income should result in an equally dramatic increase in value.
